FROM THE PUBLISHER

A poll for the decades

And cheaters never win.

A reader recently asked how many years we have been conducting our Best of Des Moines readers' poll. Good question.

I bought CITYVIEW in 2004, and we have organized the poll for more than two decades now. I received some archives of past issues dating back to 1993 as part of the acquisition, but they were incomplete. We researched this as best we could with what we have to attempt to answer the question. Unfortunately, it's not as easy as doing a Google search. We do think we found the answer, though. See the Ask CV column on page 8.

In those early years, the poll was truly revolutionary. It didn't have as many votes as today, but it was entertaining and did represent what was hot in Des Moines at the time, just as it does now. Readers then were required to fill out a hand-written ballot and mail it in. We continued that process for a while, but as the digital age came upon us, readers wanted to be able to vote online. And vote they did. The number of people voting today is more than 10x what it was in the early years, and we thank you all you who are so passionate about the people, places and events of Des Moines and central Iowa.

Of course, others have tried — and some continue to try — to imitate our poll. Other publications. Radio stations. Some chambers of commerce. Even the Des Moines Convention and Visitors Bureau. But none of those efforts can even come close to what our Best of Des Moines poll has become. The people of Des Moines and central Iowa know it. We know it. You know it. There is only one Best of Des Moines, and the latest results are in this issue.

Being recognized as the Best of Des Moines is such a prestigious honor that some folks go to great lengths to win. Many do so in creative ways by encouraging their customers or members to vote for them. Some offer incentives for them to do so. That's smart.

Others are not so honorable. They attempt to vote multiple times by clearing their cookies on their computers and voting again and again. Others are now attempting to use AI to beat the system. We catch them through our own use of technology now, including AI, and we throw those votes out, exactly as we stated we would do on our rules page. Those who attempt to cheat waste a great deal of time and, in many cases, money to win. That's not smart.

There have always been, and always will be, cheaters in this world including right here in Des Moines. Years ago, people would fill out the printed ballot and then make dozens of photo copies, sending them all in the same envelope to us, despite the rules clearly stating one vote per reader. Amazing. And today, some try to bend the rules in a digital way to do the same. It doesn't work.

What does work is being a great person, being involved in a great organization or running a great business — and that is what the winners in this year's readers' poll are. And, not only are they great. They are the best. ■

ASK CITYVIEW

By CITYVIEW staff

Ask CITYVIEW anything by emailing editor@dmcityview.com.

Q. When was the first CITYVIEW Best of Des Moines poll?

A. The answer doesn't appear to be as cut and dried as one might think. We dug deep through our archives to find the answer. The oldest complete copy we could find was from 1994. The answer was not spelled out plainly, so we had to do some more searching. One helpful clue came from a Pizza Hut ad.

"For 5 years, you've called for the best... and we've delivered!!!"

That would put the poll starting in 1990, if Pizza Hut, noted local chain, as the winner of Best Delivered Pizza since the award's inception.

Another hint, in the intro to the 1993 readers' poll, it states that 1,500 ballots were received in the mail. It also stated they were adding several businesses into the Best of Des Moines Hall of Fame for winning a category three years in a row: Hy-Vee, Hull Avenue Tap, The Metz and The Tavern. But the pages containing the results and that year's Hall of Fame were missing. Onto a 1995 edition we went.

Another hint. An ad placed by another Hall of Famer, Movies To Go Entertainment Superstore, which once featured locations in Ames, Ankeny, Cedar Rapids, Centerville/Iowa City, Des Moines, Urbandale and West Des Moines, said thank you for voting them winners for seven years in a row. That would take us back to 1988. Another ad from Waterfront Seafood Market & Restaurant thanks voters for choosing them since 1988 as well.

We thought we had figured it out. Then we flipped a few more pages, and we found yet another clue. Chi-Chi's Mexican Restaurant took out a thank you ad for being selected for nine years in a row. Now, we're in 1986.

At that time, CITYVIEW was The Skywalker. Unfortunately, we did not have any copies of The Skywalker in our archives, so voting in 1985, heading into 1986, is the best we can place the first Best of Des Moines poll. Just keep that in mind the next time you see one of the many new "Best of Des Moines" plaques or awards located around town. That black and white giant BEST has been around since the mid 1980s. ■

STRAY THOUGHTS

BY RANDY EVANS

Who deserves sympathy should not depend on politics

Help me understand...

Truth should be measured by evidence, not by political allegiance.

Can't we all agree on that?

With that in mind, a useful question for citizens and journalists to ask at times like this is simple: "Help me understand..."

The phrasing invites the person being questioned to explain his or her views on some matter of interest without the questioner coming across as accusatory.

Had I been in the White House press briefing room in recent weeks for one of Karoline Leavitt's Q&A's, I would have framed a question like this about the Minneapolis woman's shooting death by a federal agent:

"Help me understand why the president and his top allies have called Renee Good an agitator and domestic terrorist, whereas they have portrayed Ashli Babbitt as a really good person and said the U.S. Capitol Police officer who shot her got away with murder?"

Had I attended one of Attorney General Pam Bondi's press gatherings in recent weeks, I would have put this question to her:

"Help me understand the $5 million settlement your lawyers reached with Ms. Babbitt's family. The government's official investigation concluded the officer acted appropriately when he shot her as she and rioters broke into the House speaker's offices at the Capitol. Does the settlement mean Renee Good's family deserves a similar settlement?"

Were I in the swarm of reporters at Homeland Security Secretary Kristi Noem's media availability in recent weeks when she announced that Good's actions were domestic terrorism and that Good deliberately "weaponized" her vehicle against one of Noem's officers, I would have asked the secretary:

"Help me understand how the government's investigation of this shooting can be trusted when you have already stated your official conclusion without equivocation only an hour or so after her death."

As America comes to grips with another controversial shooting by law enforcement officers, an uncomfortable fact of life these days: Who gets sympathy depends on politics.

Ashli Babbitt, a 35-year-old Air Force veteran and supporter of President Trump, joined a mob of hundreds of protesters who forced their way into the U.S. Capitol as members of Congress were certifying the results of the 2020 presidential election. The mob's goal was to block the tabulation.

Babbitt was shot and killed by a U.S. Capitol Police officer as she tried to climb through a broken window into the locked door leading to the House speaker's offices while members of Congress were fleeing for their safety.

President Trump later praised Babbitt and called her "a really good person." His supporters called her a patriot and termed her death an execution.

After returning to office in 2025, Trump pardoned all Capitol rioters and questioned why the Capitol Police officer was allowed to "get away with murder."

Babbitt has taken on martyr status in the past five years. The president's allies point to her death as evidence the government overreacted to events on Jan. 6, 2021, at the Capitol.

Contrast that with reaction last week from the president and administration officials after the shooting of Renee Good, 37, a military veteran's widow and mother of three. She had no criminal record and was protesting on Jan. 7 what she and her neighbors believe was an overreach by federal law enforcement officers in Minneapolis.

In the first hours after three gunshots rang out in the neighborhood, our nation's top leaders did not take what has been the customary approach by past leaders — expressing concern and empathy, urging people to remain calm and reserve judgment, and asking the public to wait for a thorough investigation to separate fact from conjecture.

Instead, the president, vice president and secretary of the Department of Homeland Security immediately reached identical conclusions: Good was engaged in domestic terrorism and weaponized her Honda Pilot against an ICE officer. The officer acted in self-defense when he shot her. Case closed.

Many of the same people who praised Babbitt portrayed Good as an agitator and violent threat to the Immigration and Customs Enforcement officer.

The disconnect between the reactions to two tragic deaths illustrates a disturbing pattern in our country. When a shooting aligns ideologically or politically with a narrative that fits in with a group's views, the need for a thorough, unfettered investigation gives way to allegiance to group think.

If Ashli Babbitt's supporters are opposed to what they see as unjust government violence, then they should be equally outraged by Renee Good's death, too. If they truly believe every shooting by law officers must be thoroughly and independently examined, they should demand that Minnesota state investigators be allowed to work alongside the FBI and not be excluded from the Good case.

Instead, we see selective outrage, with empathy being apportioned according to political usefulness. ■

'Medieval Magic' sabbatical. Good night, Captain Trang.

Each February, we review the sabbaticals (or, as stated by the Iowa Board of Regents, "professional development assignments") granted to the professors at the state's three public universities: Iowa State University, the University of Iowa, and the University of Northern Iowa. For us common folk, a sabbatical may be used to take time off of work for a lengthy vacation. For these professors, the PDAs are used to do research, develop curricula, write books and create art. And other things.

Some of the requested PDAs are fascinating, others are head-scratching, and some actually garner curiosity about what the profs might learn. For the fiscal year 2027, there were 105 total requests at a taxpayer cost of $325,092. The bulk, $291,161, is from the University of Iowa. ISU has only $3,624, and UNI has $30,307. The Board of Regents has stated in recent years that the findings and accomplishments of these PDAs have resulted in millions of dollars in grants and external funding.

Iowa State University

The Cyclones had 35 PDA recipients. Many of these were related to academic findings related to agriculture, healthcare and veterinary science. Seven were related to artificial intelligence or machine learning findings. None related to why Matt Campbell decided to leave for Penn State. These are some of the ones we found the most interesting.

Michael Bailey, a history professor with 22 years of service, will study "Medieval Magic: A History of Disbelief." Bailey is a professor and global expert in the history of medieval magic, witchcraft and superstition. He will study how disbelief developed in the Middle Ages, enriching the understanding of an important component of medieval culture. The results will be published in a book, sharing the same title and contributing to his teachings. He also requested $270,000 in external funding to support this assignment.

History Professor Brian Behnken, with 16 years of service, will write the first draft of "The Rise and Fall of Blockbuster Video." The book will detail the history of the once popular video lending service and Behnken says it will fill a much-needed gap in modern American business history.

The PDA is expected to lead to a new Iowa State course chronicling popular businesses that have failed.

Tao Wang, an associate professor of history with 11 years of service, will complete a book, "The Hawkeye State and The Middle Kingdom: A History of Relations Between Iowa and China." He says the work will result in peer-reviewed journal articles, public presentations, exhibitions, and enhancements for ISU courses, including a new course on the history between Iowa and China.

Associate professor of liberal arts and sciences-social work, Man Guo, with 15 years of service, will research “Psychological Well-being in Older Adults: Exploring the Impact of Race/Ethnicity and Immigration Status.” The U.S. population is growing older and more diverse. Guo will use data from the Health and Retirement, the largest national study on older Americans, to examine how race, ethnicity and immigration background shape psychological well-being in aging populations. Guo says the research will find key challenges, resources and resilience factors that influence mental health across different groups of older adults. The expected outcome is to publish multiple journal articles and develop new instructional materials for courses.

Marc Linder, a law professor with 34 years of experience, will write the third volume of work relating to cigarettes. “A History of the Regulation of Cigarettes and Smoking Since the 19th Century. Volume 3: The Merchants of Fire Death.” Much is known about the health issues caused by smoking to the smoker and those surrounded by it, but this book looks at the history and death toll caused by deaths and injuries in cigarette-caused fires. It says that the third volume of the 10,000-page work unearths and presents in detail the full sweep of this public safety catastrophe from rural national forests to urban workplaces.

Todd Bohenkamp, associate professor of communication sciences and disorders with 20 years of service, will work on “Exercise-Induced Laryngeal Obstruction (EILO): Investigating Prevalence, Comorbidities, and Barriers to Diagnosis and Care.” EILO is an upper airway disorder that can result in airflow obstruction in response to irritants or physical exertion and exercise. EILO has been reported as high as 30% in athletes in cold weather and most commonly affects adolescents and young adults, especially females, and is often misdiagnosed as asthma. This can result in ineffective treatments and unnecessary use of medicines. The project will examine the health impacts of EILO among student athletes at UNI and Auburn University and could eventually serve to benefit athletes across Iowa.

Aleksandar Poleksic, a computer science professor with 20 years of service, will work on a project titled “Advancing SARDS Research Through Academia-Industry Partnership.” Sudden Acquired Retinal Degeneration Syndrome (SARDS) is a rare eye condition in dogs that causes sudden, irreversible blindness. Mainly affecting middle-aged dogs, it occurs within weeks or sometimes days. This is allegedly the first effort to develop and validate machine learning models to understand SARDS. Poleksic will partner with the Animal Eye Consultants of Iowa in Hiawatha to provide access to a database of canine medical records.

Professor of languages and literatures with 17 years of service, Jeremy Schraffenberger, will write a novel called “The Spiritualists,” which is based on the true story of two historical figures from 19th-century Boston: Alonzo Newton and Sarah Newton. Alonzo was a spiritualist journalist and lecturer, and Sarah was a medium who claimed to communicate with the dead. The book is written from the perspective of their now elderly daughter, Ada Trowbirdge, who is visited by the ghost of her dead father. ...

Having a kid at 15 and more straight talk from ‘The AOC of Iowa’

Congressional candidate Stephanie Steiner, who supports women’s reproductive rights, says she didn’t have an internal struggle with what to do as a teenager with an unexpected pregnancy.

Early into the first speech I heard her give, Stephanie Steiner said she had a child at age 15.

It’s defining in many ways for Steiner, an Iowa Democratic congressional candidate who would go on to have six more kids, battle her way through a truant and self-described wayward childhood in Alabama and Iowa to success as a caregiver — a neonatal nurse and, first and always, a mother who in a recent interview was reached while helping one of her kids change a tire on a remote rural road in northwest Iowa near her home in Sutherland. On another call, she was beside a sick kid with a stubborn stomach problem. That daughter is fine now.

“My life has been spent taking care of people. That’s what I do,” Steiner said. “And, I love it.”

One of the rules of engagement in contemporary American cultural discussion involving identity is this: if you are it, you can say it — or at least talk about it.

Steiner and I are not the same, but we are both formed from one of the more challenging decisions a human being can make: what to do with an unwanted child?

I’m adopted, the product of a teenage mother who made a different decision than Steiner. She gave me up. I’m at once thankful and bitter for it, and I was up front with Steiner, telling her just that when I talked to her about her frame of mind when she learned of her own pregnancy early in her teen years.

“I was 15 when I had my first kid,” Steiner said in an interview. “You just do it. You just do it.”

Steiner, now 44, would have four kids by the time she was 21. Seven total biologically. And three more in step fashion through her second marriage to Mark Steiner Sr., a welding supervisor, who, along with Stephanie, manages a 10-acre goat farm in O’Brien County near the South Dakota border.

A candidate who supports women’s reproductive rights, Steiner didn’t have an internal struggle with what to do herself — at age 15 — with an unexpected pregnancy.

Abortion was not an option, she said.

“When I had my first child at 15, I never considered it,” she said.

“I’m personally pro-life,” Steiner said. “I chose not to have an abortion. I’m glad I had that choice. And, I support women that had abortions as well because it is personal to them.”

She added, “It’s like this: I love my kids. And that was the choice I made. I think everybody deserves to make their own choice. I’m not saying it was the easiest thing, but it has been very rewarding.”

Steiner spoke at an Iowa event with one of her political heroes, U.S. Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont, shortly after announcing her campaign in the state’s sweeping 4th Congressional District. For her part, Steiner didn’t demure when I suggested she might very well be “The AOC of Iowa” — a reference to the straight-talking Congresswoman Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez of New York who has a rare and authentic connectivity with working people, one earned through shifts as a bartender and the relatability of making a living through sweaty routines.

Is Stephanie Steiner “The AOC of Iowa?”

“That’s my hope, yeah,” Steiner said. “I know what it means to be an everyday Iowan. I lived it. It is my lived experience. I share these lived experiences.”

A native of Athens, Alabama, who speaks with a decided Southern lilt and sports tattoos and peppers her speech with anecdotes of a hardscrabble upbringing, a life of full houses of kids and frugal cupboards, Steiner can summon the earned working-class grievances of economically dislocated, dismissed MAGA voters. She would not look out of place at any of the Trump rallies I have covered over the last decade.

But, where others react with cruelty and self-interest, Steiner, who has lived in Iowa since 1996, said she reaches for kindness and connection.

“I’m a person that looks at things and says, ‘How do we make this better?’ ” Steiner said. “A lot of people, they have a lot of struggles, they have a lot of hardships, and they get bitter and they get angry, and I always took those as opportunities to grow.”

Steiner supports Medicare for all, “non-negotiable” medical privacy, a repeal of the so-called Big, Beautiful Bill and policies she says will put farmers and Iowa’s environment over corporate interests and greed.

She is thinking a lot about artificial intelligence these days, about how unregulated technological advances will steal American jobs, from factories to law firms to perhaps even the delivery rooms she inhabited as a women’s health nurse. No one is safe from the AI job-killing monster, she said.

“I hear it everywhere,” Steiner said.

“It’s going to take people’s jobs away,” she said.

She gets furious seeing self-check-outs at grocery and convenience stores.

“Yes, yes, that’s some of the problem,” she said. “It is disconnect. It is all of this Internet and AI. It is pulling people apart. People rely on that instead of human connections. All of this stuff, it goes between people.”

Steiner said she won’t back down on civil rights, or from defending marginalized demographics of Iowans from bullying. She has lived experience here, too, as Steiner has three daughters in the LGBTQ+ community — trans, lesbian and bisexual daughters.

“Everybody should have the same civil rights. These are absolute necessities,” Steiner said. “To say ‘you are only worthy if you believe the way I do’ — that just desecrates our Constitution, our Declaration of Independence. That is why we fled a tyrant king.”

There are two other announced candidates in Iowa’s 4th District Democratic congressional primary — Dave Dawson of Lawton, a prosecutor in the Woodbury County Attorney’s Office and a former state legislator, and Ashley WolfTornabane of Storm Lake, who has experience as a public school instructional assistant. Republicans have a full primary field as U.S. Rep. Randy Feenstra, R-Hull, is running for governor. ■

Mixing FAMILY and BUSINESS

The challenges and realities in operating family-owned companies

By Lindsey Giardino

Family businesses often blur the line between work and home, where dinner-table conversations double as strategy sessions and legacy weighs as much as the bottom line. For these local business leaders, working with family isn't just a career path; it's a daily challenge and a source of deep pride.

After Bob Jones and Richard Jones retired, Christy Jones sold R Jones Collision 1 to Caliber Collision.

FEATURE

Growing up in hospitality

Pritesh Patel's family has owned and operated hotels for more than 25 years. Most recently, they have brought a new concept to the industry.

Hotel Pommier is the family's independent hotel brand, beginning with the renovation and conversion of the Apple Tree Inn in Indianola. The brand grew when the family converted the Super 8 in Chariton into Hotel Pommier Chariton.

Like many small-business owners, Patel's role has evolved over time — from covering front desk shifts and laundry to setting high-level strategy and obsessing over the guest experience.

"In a family-run hotel, you don't really 'join' the business as much as you grow up within it," he shares. "My early involvement was helping parents fold towels, clean rooms and even do payroll. I had always helped behind the scenes throughout college in areas my parents couldn't outwork, like technology."

After college, Patel spent his early career as a consultant, traveling across the nation and staying at dozens of hotels. Ultimately, he decided to return to the family business after recognizing a unique opportunity to apply what he had learned from modern, big-city properties to a local setting.

"I wanted to prove that you don't have to be in a major metro area to offer a sophisticated, tech-forward and design-conscious guest experience," he says.

With Hotel Pommier, he's done just that. Still, as with many family businesses, work doesn't always stay at work — it often follows him home.

"Great way to annoy the heck out of family that could care less about what towels we are going to buy," Patel jokes.

Despite the challenges, working in the family business remains a point of pride. Patel credits his parents' years of hard work and sacrifice as the foundation that made Hotel Pommier possible.

"Taking an existing property and breathing new life into it as an independent brand versus a corporate chain was a risk," he says. "But, seeing the community and guest support has been incredibly rewarding. I hope we turn each of our hotels from another place to sleep into a point of local pride."

The family recently acquired a third Hotel Pommier location in Winterset and is eager to get it up and running.

"Madison County has so many local gems, and we hope our hotel earns its place as a small part of what makes the community so special," Patel says.

Pritesh Patel's family has owned and operated hotels for more than 25 years.

Continuing a legacy

For Christy Jones, there was never a time when she wasn't surrounded by her family business.

R Jones Auto Body was founded in 1971 by her father, Bob, and his business partner. Over the years — and through several name changes — the business became R Jones Collision 1, a premier collision repair facility on Merle Hay Road in Urbandale.

It was truly a family-run operation. After buying out his partner, Jones' father, who ran production, brought in his brother Richard as a body technician. Jones' mother, Ann, joined the business in the mid-1980s, handling accounting while Jones and her siblings were in school full time, keeping every part of the operation within the family.

Yet, Jones says she never felt pressured to join the business. She had the freedom to choose her own path, so she earned a teaching degree and spent a year in the classroom before realizing it wasn't her calling.

That realization led her to North Carolina, where she gave herself space to figure out her next chapter.

"Life, however, had other plans, and when my mom became ill, coming home to support both my family and the business felt like the right thing to do," Jones shares.

In 2015, Bob and Richard retired, and Jones purchased the business. Six years later, she sold it to Caliber Collision, though her work today still reflects her family legacy.

"I now work as a business coach, helping other family-owned and small businesses navigate growth, succession and sustainability — many of the same challenges I experienced firsthand," Jones explains.

When it comes to working with family, Jones says there is rarely a clear separation between business and personal life.

"When your coworkers are also your dad and your uncle, the business naturally becomes a topic of conversation at family dinners, holidays and gatherings," she says. "The lines between personal and professional life blur quickly, and learning when to talk business — and when not to — is one of the biggest challenges of working in a family-run company."

On the flip side, Jones says working with family taught her patience and compromise.

"When multiple family members are involved, everyone brings strong opinions, history and emotional investment to the table," she says. "You learn quickly that you won't win every battle, and that's OK. Learning how to listen, stay patient and find middle ground is critical, not just for the business, but for preserving relationships."

Ultimately, Jones is proud of what her family built together.

"Our business served customers with integrity and supported our community for decades," she says. "Most of all, I'm proud that we truly were better together. Each of us brought different strengths to the business, and that combination is what made it successful."

Those lessons continue to shape Jones' life today.

"It taught me that businesses are about more than

P&M Apparel is a third-generation custom apparel and branding company in Polk City.

Megan Griffith and her brother, Ryan, assumed ownership of their family business, P&M Apparel.

numbers — they're about people," she says. "That experience continues to influence the work I do today, helping other business owners build strong teams, healthy cultures and sustainable legacies of their own."

Running a business with a sibling

Megan Griffith never intended to join the family business — P&M Apparel, a third-generation, family- and woman-owned custom apparel and branding company in Polk City founded in 1987.

"I wanted to be a big shot graphic designer and move somewhere like New York and work at a magazine," Griffith says. "I realized pretty quickly that the sacrifices you have to make to get in those big shot positions weren't sacrifices I wanted to make. So, when my mom needed a designer, we went into it as a temporary solution, and I came to appreciate the freedom to make creative choices, and the impact we can make in the community."

P&M Apparel, named for Griffith's grandparents, Phyllis and Melvin, offers custom screen printing, embroidery, promotional products and more. The shop was taken over by Griffith's mom when Griffith was a teenager. About two and a half years ago, Griffith and her brother Ryan assumed ownership.

Griffith manages art and day-to-day operations, while Ryan oversees web work and larger strategic initiatives.

"Both Ryan and I kind of grew up in the business: first visiting our grandparents and playing around in their shop when we were little, spending days as a shop kid hanging around if we were sick or had the day off from school, to then jumping in and helping with production as we got older," Griffith shares. "I finally joined full time in 2012 and have been here ever since."

One reality she has learned is that it is impossible to completely separate work from life in a family business.

"At a normal job, you punch a clock and go home, celebrate the holidays with your family, spend the weekend not thinking about work," she says. "But working with family, I leave work and I'm texting my brother ideas within a couple hours, or I'm bringing my kids to work, or we celebrate holidays with my mom and start talking shop within a few minutes. My life is woven right into my job and vice versa."

Griffith also believes family dynamics shape her leadership style as an employer.

"Prioritizing the person over the action, considering love languages and how to best understand them and communicate in a way they will understand, all play pivotal roles as an employer," she says. "My mom always put family before business if there was a disagreement or emergency, and we treat our staff the same way."

As a third-generation owner, Griffith feels the weight — and pride — of legacy. When her grandparents started the business, their goal was to earn $300 a week. Today, P&M Apparel operates out of a large facility with a dedicated staff and a strong foundation of community involvement.

"At a normal job, you punch a clock and go home, celebrate the holidays with your family, spend the weekend not thinking about work.

But working with family, I leave work and I'm texting my brother ideas within a couple hours, or I'm bringing my kids to work, or we celebrate holidays with my mom and start talking shop within a few minutes. My life is woven right into my job and vice versa."

— Megan Griffith

"We are responsible for putting food on the tables of every person in our company, and that's not something Ryan or I take lightly," Griffith says. "Our clients are walking into our building with the things they're most passionate about in all the world, and it's our responsibility to be passionate about it, too, so we can deliver them the exact products they need to tell their story. We are the picture of a small business: we're local people, coming together to serve the local community in a way you can't receive from big business. And I'm incredibly proud of what we've built and the legacy we've built on." ■

Cyd's Catering

We are incredibly grateful for the continued support of our community. Being welcomed into homes, offices, and local gatherings year after year is something we never take for granted. It's an honor to serve the people who support us, and we're proud to continue catering meaningful moments - both big and small! We look forward to many more seasons of sharing great food and heartfelt hospitality with the community that makes it all possible.

BEST

of Des Moines

More than 12,000 votes were cast in our annual readers' poll in categories ranging from the best service, best food, best doctors, best clothes, best drinks and even the best bathrooms. See full results inside.

By Cyote Williams

Traveling around Des Moines guarantees a few things. At some point, you will need to stop for food. Lucky for us, Des Moines has one of the most underrated food scenes in the entire country, but it's certainly not underrated by its diners. You can shop in most any part of this city and find locally owned shops selling the metro's finest creations. You can receive top-notch medical care from head to toe thanks to qualified professionals who grew up right next door.

How do those in the capital city know where to go when wanting the best of all things? The iconic, black and white, circular CITYVIEW Best of Des Moines logo tells them. The more than 12,000 voters signal locals that inside that business is the best service, best food, best doctors, best clothes, best drinks, even the best bathrooms.

So, do yourself a favor, and trust the people of Des Moines who have chosen the 2026 Best of Des Moines winners and runners-up. From CITYVIEW, thank you to the voters and readers, and congratulations to the winners and runners-up.

Best New Local Restaurant Palms DSM

Palms DSM, an African-Caribbean style restaurant, took the metro and its taste buds by storm in 2026. Braised oxtail and honey suya wings deliver a flavor profile that had Best of Des Moines voters salivating. A delectable list of sides and sweets only enhance the meal, and a cocktail list that will make you stay longer, earned the Ingersoll restaurant its win. 1905 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-214-1213; www.eatpalms.com.

Runners-up: Judges; Masao

Best-Kept Secret on the Local Restaurant Scene

Simon's

Simon's selection in this category marks a decade that readers have chosen it as the Best-Kept Secret on the Local Restaurant scene. After 10 years in a row, we wonder if it's much of a secret, yet Simon's consistent excellence in food, customer service and attracting repeat customers is beyond doubt. 5800 Franklin Ave., Des Moines, 515-255-3725; www.simonsdsm.com.

Runners-up: Early Bird Brunch; Railroad Bill's Dining Car

Best Local Restaurant Period Simon's

With a decade as the Best-Kept Secret, and now, four straight years as the Best Local Restaurant Period, Simon's delicious dynasty in these two categories continues. The restaurant's incredible selection of wines to pair with dishes such as steak deBurgo, lamb chops or one of their pastas makes this restaurant the best. 5800 Franklin Ave., Des Moines, 515-255-3725; www.simonsdsm.com.

Runners-up: Early Bird Brunch; Charlotte's Kitchen

Best Local Fine Dining Oak Park

Oak Park burst onto the scene last year, winning Best New Local Restaurant, as well as this category. It has once again been voted as the Best Local Fine Dining by Best of Des Moines voters. Oak Park features one of the best wine selections in the city, and with menu items such as duck raviolo, pappardelle and wonderful cuts of steak, this restaurant makes for a great choice for a special occasion — or when you feel like treating yourself. 3901 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-620-2185; www.oakparkdsm.com.

Runners-up: Simon's; Harbinger

Best Valley Junction Restaurant Cooper's on 5th

Make that five years in a row for Cooper's on 5th being chosen as Best Valley Junction Restaurant by Best of Des Moines voters. There are some great restaurants in this area, but this one continues to take the cake. Try tasty appetizers like the eggroll du jour, sandwiches such as their Junction Burger, which comes with a house bourbon glaze, crispy and white cheddar cheese, or get fancy with short ribs, filets or a seafood carbonara. 227 Fifth St., West Des Moines, 515-255-9895; www.cooperson5th.com.

Runners-up: Bix & Co.; G Mig's 5th Street Pub

Best West Glen Restaurant Anna Dolce Ristorante

Competing with the legacy Italian restaurants that dot Des Moines, Anna Dolce Ristorante makes its claim to join them, according to CITYVIEW readers. A staple in West Glen, the business boasts a great happy hour during the week and treats, such as their calamari fries, lobster arancini and a list of pastas, sure to please. 5585 Mills Civic Parkway, West Des Moines, 515-223-2302; www.annadolceristorante.com.

Runners-up: El Fogon; Irina's Steak & Seafood

Best East Village Restaurant Lucca

Lucca, a fine dining Italian restaurant, has captured the favor of East Village diners and the votes of CITYVIEW readers. Come in for lunch if you work in or are visiting the area or make a reservation and sink your teeth into their prix-fixe dinner menu. Lucca has been serving the area for more than two decades, and another win in this category helps show they have staying power. 420 E. Locust St., Des Moines, 515-243-1115; www.luccadsm.com.

Runners-up: Early Bird Brunch; Alba

Best Prairie Trail Restaurant District 36 Wine Bar & Grille

There has not been a single year in this category's existence that District 36 Wine Bar & Grille has not won it. For seven years straight, this Ankeny establishment has wined and dined the local populace with its excellent selection of wines and cocktails and its brick oven pizzas and signature pastas from Creole to cavatelli. 1375 S.W. ### Best Beaverdale Area Restaurant Christopher's

There are not many restaurants in the area that can match Christopher's longevity — 50-plus years. With its selection of traditional and classical Italian dinners, there is no need to mess with a good thing. Beaverdale residents know this lesson well enough, as they and CITYVIEW readers voted for Christopher's for this award for another year. 2816 Beaver Ave., Des Moines, 515-274-3694; www.christophersdsm.com.

Runners-up: The Dam Pub; Basic Bird

Best Drake Area Restaurant Drake Diner

This restaurant, which shares its namesake with the neighborhood it feeds, has won the Best Drake Area Restaurant for another year running. The upscale retro Drake Diner has been family owned and operated since 1987 and has been bringing the metro some of the most welcoming and tasteful foods ever since. 1111 25th St., Des Moines, 515-277-1111; www.drakediner.com.

Runners-up: Lucky Horse Beer & Burgers; University Library Cafe

Best Local American Food Lachele's Fine Foods

When it comes to American food, specifically cheeseburgers, Lachele's Fine Foods has dominated the local scene ever since it opened in 2021. Spoiler alert, this Ingersoll restaurant also won Best Local Burger once again. Their signature sauce, crispy fries and rotating specials give American food enjoyers plenty of reasons to return time and time again. So much so, that they opened a second location. 2716 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-330-6876; www.lacheles.com.

Runners-up: Drake Diner; Gastro Grub & Pub

Best Local Vegetarian/ Vegan Food Early Bird Brunch

Early Bird Brunch, as you might have noticed already, has made several runner-up appearances in 2026. It moves into the winner's circle thanks to vegetarian and vegan CITYVIEW readers. ### Cosi Cucina

Make that back-to-back selections for Cosi Cucina as Best of Des Moines voters' choice for Best Local Italian Food. In a city with more award-winning Italian restaurants than one can imagine, Cosi Cucina serves up pastas, pizzas, calamari and other Italian favorites the best, say CITYVIEW readers. 1975 N.W. 86th St., Clive, 515-278-8148; www.cosicucina.com.

Runners-up: Tumea & Sons Restaurant; Baratta's

Best Local Mexican Food

Fiesta Mexican Restaurant

Fiesta Mexican Restaurant is back again as CITYVIEW readers' choice for Best Local Mexican Food. With multiple locations serving up classic, quality Mexican favorites like flautas, pozole and delicious slow braised birria beef, this restaurant is one to try, if you have not already. And, don't forget their flavorful choices for margaritas as well. Put those together, and patrons are sure to have a memorable meal. Locations in West Des Moines, Adel and Pleasant Hill, 515-207-2577; www.fiestaiaowa.com.

Runners-up: Faustinos Taqueria; Tasty Tacos

Best Local Thai Food

Thai Flavors

Thai Flavors has become Best of Des Moines voters' consistent choice for Best Local Thai Food, as they win this award once more. They say, "Thai dishes are prepared fresh and require a skilled and patient hand to season and cook the ingredients in the proper sequence. Because of this, some dishes require a little more time to prepare, but are definitely worth the wait." CITYVIEW readers agree. Locations on East 14th Street and Ingersoll Avenue; www.thaiflavorsiowa.com.

Runners-Up: Cool Basil; Eat Thai, Thai Eatery

Best Local Chinese Food

Tsing Tsao

Tsing Tsao offers its Best of Des Moines-award winning food at locations that serve several parts of the metro with Chinese favorites at reasonable prices. That's a hard combo for the competition to beat, much like the combo specials on their menu from broccoli beef to sweet and sour shrimp. Locations in Urbandale, Waukee and Des Moines; www.tsingtsao.com.

Runners-up: Shanghai Restaurant; Lucky Bamboo

Best Local Japanese Food

Sakari Sushi Lounge

Ingersoll area restaurants have been a major feature in this year's awards, and you can add Sakari Sushi Lounge to that list of winners, as they have been voted Best Local Japanese Food again. Sakari has Japanese favorites and classics while serving up, you guessed it, excellent sushi, bento boxes and much more. Not only that, but Sakari has a great list of cocktails and other adult beverages to make an already great meal better. 2605 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-288-3381; www.sakarisushilounge.com.

Runners-up: Wasabi; Akebono 515

Best Local Mediterranean Food

The Green Olive

The Green Olive has been serving delightful, traditional Mediterranean food since 2002. Meats such as steak, ground beef, chicken, lamb, salmon, shrimp and gyro bring you right to the Mediterranean coast with all of its regional flavors. Kabob wraps or plates are bright, fresh and tasty. Not to mention healthy salads, sides and sweet treats for dessert. Locations in Des Moines, West Des Moines, 515-285-9179; www.thegreenolivedsm.com.

Best Local Seafood Waterfront Seafood Market

Waterfront has had a vice grip on this category for years. Its reputation for getting fresh fish directly from fishers and brokers since its opening in 1984 is a big reason why. Its seafood market is elite if you're looking to cook something at home, but everything they make in house from smoked salmon, clams and oysters to swordfish is what garners them the Best Local Seafood votes. Locations in West Des Moines, Ankeny, 515-223-5106; www.waterfrontseafoodmarket.com.

Runners-up: Splash; Laughing Crab

Best Local Sushi Sakari Sushi Lounge

Doubling up for the second year in a row as both CITYVIEW readers' choice for Best Local Japanese Food and Best Local Sushi is Sakari Sushi Lounge. Their sushi menu hits all of the favorites with various tempura, sashimi and maki. Sakari also gets creative with its Snake, Hawkeye and Godzilla rolls. Do not worry, no snakes, Hawkeyes or mythical creatures were harmed in the making of these tasty rolls. 2605 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-288-3381; www.sakarisushilounge.com.

Runners-up: Wasabi; Akebono 515

Best Local Steakhouse Iowa Beef Steakhouse

This storied steakhouse opened in 1982, best known for huge cuts of steak cooked over charcoal. The wood that makes the restaurant cozy, and a majority of the décor, came from a southern Iowa barn. From New York strips to ribeyes, with plenty of great sides to choose from, Iowa Beef Steakhouse is sure to serve up a tasty and hardy dinner for any occasion. 1201 E. Euclid Ave., Des Moines, 515-262-1138; www.iowabeefsteakhouse.com.

Runners-up: The Big Steer; 801 Chophouse

Best Local Brunch/Breakfast Early Bird Brunch

Early Bird Brunch has been capturing the brunch and breakfast aficionados who are Best of Des Moines voters for four years in a row. Whether you are visiting for a family meal after church, grabbing a bite to eat before a day of shopping, or trying to cure a hangover, Early Bird's breakfast and cocktail menu gets creative while still providing the breakfast basics. Locations in Ankeny, East Village and West Des Moines, 515-528-2212; www.earlybirdbrunch.com.

Runners-up: HomeGrown; Waveland Cafe

Best Local Delicatessen Manhattan Deli

Other local delicatessens have been aiming to knock off Manhattan Deli as the Best Local Delicatessen for some years now, but the leader takes home this award once more. This institution has been serving sandwiches and cold cuts since the 1980s. Sandwiches such as The Hula Girl and The Big Apple are new to the menu, offering neat twists to classics. But, have no fear, the original subs are here as well, and they are still great. 3705 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-274-1208; www.hansensmanhattandeli.com.

Runners-up: Palmer's Deli & Market; A Taste of Italy

Best Local Burger Lachele's Fine Foods

Lachele's burst onto the scene in 2021 and has not looked back, winning this award every year since its opening — and for good reason. Lachele's signature smashed patty creates a lovely, salty crisp, while the patty still retains juice and flavor. A soft bun complements the meat. With rotating specials to create new tastes, it's no wonder this restaurant quickly became, and has stayed, a local favorite. Two Des Moines locations, 2716 Ingersoll Ave., and 3621 Sixth Ave., 515-330-6876; www.lacheles.com.

Runners-up: B-Bop's; Zombie Burger + Drink Lab

Best Local Pizza Taste of New York Pizza

Taste of New York Pizza brings the world-renowned flavors of a slice from the Big Apple right into our backyards. The pizza gets cooked in a ripping hot 550-degree oven to give a crispy crust. Then, cut into large slices, it is easy to take on the go or enjoy at home with friends and family. They have got all the classics but get creative with lasagna and chicken pesto pizzas. Locations in Waukee, West Des Moines and Pleasant Hill, 515-223-8669; www.tasteofnypizza.com.

Runners-up: Pepp's Pizzeria; The Tavern

Best Local Bakery La Mie

La Mie Bakery brings the delectable world of French pastries to Des Moines much to the delight of its residents and CITYVIEW readers. Step inside and try out their other menu items ranging from Italian sandwiches to green quinoa and French toast. 841 42nd St., Des Moines, 515-255-1625; www.lamiebakery.com.

Runners-up: ChaCha's Hiland Bakery; The Bake Shoppe

Best Local Cupcake Shop Molly's Cupcakes

Molly of Molly's Cupcakes used to bake cupcakes for her students on their birthdays. Now, after being a runner-up last year, she returns with the 2026 Best Local Cupcake Shop. With locations spanning several states and awards from national outlets, Molly's Cupcakes beg to be eaten in abundance. With a lineup featuring cookie monster, Samoa, churro and peanut butter Nutella, these cupcakes scratch most any sweet tooth's craving. 215 East Third St., Suite 101, Des Moines, 515-244-0778; www.mollyscupcakes.com.

Runners-up: Crème; ChaCha's Hiland Bakery

Best Local BBQ Smokey D's BBQ

For the eighth year in a row, Smokey D's BBQ takes the top spot for Best Local BBQ. The local BBQ joint has racked up more than 1,000 awards over the years from various outlets and has been featured on Food Network's "Diners, Drive-ins and Dives," but, most importantly, they serve up comforting, flavorful BBQ of all kinds. 5055 N.W. Second Ave., Des Moines, 515-243-2747; www.smokeydsbbq.com.

Runners-up: Whatcha Smokin' BBQ & Brew; Kue'd Smokehouse

Best Local French Fries B-Bop's

B-Bop's wins this award for another year running thanks to its salty, crispy fries. They are the perfect pairing to one of their cheeseburgers, chicken nuggets or other sandwiches. Dunk them in a side of ranch or get the perfect mix of sweet and savory by dipping them into a milkshake. Don't forget the ones at the bottom of the bag, either. Multiple locations; www.b-bops.com.

Runners-up: Francie's Bar & Grill; Gastro Grub & Pub

Best Local Chicken Wings Sakari Sushi Lounge

You might be scratching your head, saying the best sushi place also has the Best Local Chicken Wings? Well, stop scratching and taste their chicken wings for yourself. Wonderfully decorated and just as flavorful. 2605 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-288-3381; www.sakarishushilounge.com.

Runners-up: The Chicken Coop Sports Bar & Grill; The Station on Ingersoll

Best Local Nachos University Library Cafe

Nachos are arguably the most sharable food on any restaurant menu. They are easy to grab, pass around and enjoy. University Library Cafe has perfected its Best Local Nachos over time, winning this award again thanks to Best of Des Moines voters. The old school bar in the Drake neighborhood serves nachos with pinto beans, shredded cheddar cheese, Monterey cheese sauce, salsa, mild banana pepper rings, Pico de Gallo, sour cream and your choice of hamburger, chicken, roast beef, bacon or corned beef for an extra $3. Yum. 3506 University Ave., Des Moines, 515-255-0433; www.thelibrarydm.com.

Runners-up: The Pelican Post Bar & Grille; Francie's Bar & Grill

Best Local Tacos Tasty Tacos

Tasty Tacos continues its reign in being voted the Best Local Tacos. Their signature fired flour shell puffs up into a pillowy, fluffy vessel to be filled with steak, beef, chicken or beans. Top that off with lettuce and cheese, and their house hot sauce, and it's no wonder CITYVIEW readers turn to the local chain time and time again. Multiple locations; www.tastytacos.com.

Runners-up: Faustinos Taqueria; Tacos La Familia

Best Local Tenderloin Smitty's Tenderloin Shop

Smitty's has been serving the original king tenderloin since 1952. With Iowa being known for its tenderloins across the nation, being voted the Best Local Tenderloin is no small feat. At Smitty's, tenderloins are fried thin and crispy while still retaining plenty of juice and flavor. The king tenderloin might take up your entire plate, but CITYVIEW readers are not complaining. 1401 Army Post Road, Des Moines, 515-287-4742; www.facebook.com/smittytenderloins.

Runners-up: Goldie's Bar & Grill; Bix & Co.

Best Local Bar Food Francie's Bar & Grill

Best of Des Moines voters have been hard pressed to find a place better than Francie's when it comes to the Best Local Bar Food. A multi-time winner of this award for its burgers, sandwiches, hot wings and more, it is not difficult to see why. A classic neighborhood bar with a relaxed, inviting interior, TV screens all around to catch the game, cocktails, beers and attentive service all make for a great experience. 2100 Wakonda View Drive, Des Moines, 515-285-5207; www.franciesbarandgrill.com.

Runners-up: The Pelican Post Bar & Grille; The Station on Ingersoll

Best Local Coffee/Coffeehouse Smokey Row Coffee Co.

Need a cup of joe to start your day? A latte or cappuccino as a little treat? An espresso to get you through that late-night study session? Or, even a place to open your books and laptop to study? Smokey Row, voters' choice for Best Local Coffee/Coffeehouse, has connoisseurs covered on all these fronts at any of their locations. Multiple locations; www.smokeyrow.com.

Runners-up: Northern Vessel; Zanzibar's Coffee Adventure

Best Local Wine Selection at a Restaurant Louie's Wine Dive

We counted more than 60 on Louie's Wine Dive's online menu for the total number of wine options. Now, quantity is not the only factor in what makes Louie's wine selection the best in the Best of Des Moines poll. The business also has high-end options. Cabernet, citrus, reds, whites, you name it. They offer affordable options, as well as pricier ones for any pocketbook. 4040 University Ave., Suite A, Des Moines, 515-777-3416; www.louieswinedive.com.

Runners-up: Cooper's Hawk Winery & Restaurant; Oak Park

Best Local First Date Spot Sakari Sushi Lounge

Sakari Sushi Lounge wins the Best Local First Date Spot for another year in a row. Perhaps love is in the air at Sakari, creating relationships that last a lifetime while filling bellies with a sushi roll or two, or three. It could just be the award-winning cocktails, but Best of Des Moines voters seem to think it is a combination. 2605 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-288-3381; www.sakarisushilounge.com.

Runners-up: Gastro Grub & Pub; Early Bird Brunch

Best Local Restaurant Patio Big Grove Brewery

Big Grove Brewery migrated to Des Moines in 2022, bringing with it an incredible patio to match its food and drink options. During the warmer months, and for the brave of heart during the chillier ones, Big Grove's patio is spacious enough to hold events, a date night, or a fun night with friends. Multiple fireplaces set the mood but also keep you warm while enjoying one of their original brewed concoctions. 555 17th St., Des Moines, 515-777-2337; www.biggrove.com.

Runners-up: The Pelican Post Bar & Grille; Either/Or

Runners-up: Chocolate Storybook; Nan's Nummies

Best Local Korean Food

DZÔ Korean BBQ

Another restaurant that has taken over its category since it came onto the local food scene is DZÔ Korean BBQ. With three years in town, it has racked up three Best Local Korean Food awards. The table-top grill has a large selection of meats for you to dress up your own way and plenty of flavorful sides to enhance the experience. You'll leave feeling full, satisfied and wanting to return soon. 2611 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-216-1472; www.dzokoreanbbq.com.

Runners-up: Basic Bird; KPOT Korean BBQ & Hot Pot

Best Server

Denise Sullivan, Iowa Beef Steakhouse

Denise Sullivan takes home this year's Best Server award thanks to CITYVIEW readers and Iowa Beef Steakhouse diners. When you're serving at the Best Local Steakhouse, the excellent food might help, but, in the end, an attentive server can take any dining experience from good to great, and Denise Sullivan has been doing just that.

Runners-up: Ted Blackwood, The Big Steer; Zoey Osteen, Gastro Grub & Pub

Best Local Ice Cream or Gelato Shop

Black Cat Ice Cream

Black cats might be a sign of bad luck, but a Black Cat Ice Cream sign is a sure fire tell for great ice cream. Black Cat wins Best Local Ice Cream or Gelato Shop for the fourth year in a row thanks to its artisanal creamy delights. Fun flavors such as bananas foster, glazed cherry donut or killer bee have been found on their menu. Get a scoop and try one of them for yourself. Locations in Des Moines and West Des Moines, 515-689-7466; www.blackcaticecream.com.

Runners-up: Home Sweet Cone Ice Cream; Snookies Malt Shop

Best Local Boba Shop

Zenko Tea

Zenko Tea was runner-up last year but takes home Best Local Boba Shop this year. Boba shops have been sweeping the nation and Des Moines as of late, bringing delicious variations of milk tea. This year, Zenko Tea does it the best. Beverages ranging from Black Sugar Milk Tea, Honeydew Smoothie and Red Dragon (dragon fruit and raspberry) fruit tea have all satisfied customers. ## Best Local Store (Overall)

Bing's

Bing's appears to be the gift that keeps on giving, winning Best Local Store (Overall). The Valley Junction store becomes a favorite over the holidays for people shopping for Christmas presents. However, business does not slow down for the rest of the year, as their fun and wacky selection of toys and art excite customers, and their book selections satisfy. The store has something for most anyone. 213 Fifth St., West Des Moines, 515-279-3141; www.bingsdsm.com.

Runners-up: Tandem Brick Gallery; Josephs Jewelers

Best Local Men's Clothing Store

Mr. B

With this year's selection, Mr. B joins an exclusive club that has won 10 straight Best of Des Moines awards in a row — a decade of dominance for the men's clothing store that helps guys look like gentlemen. Whether it be for a wedding, new job or fancy dinner, Mr. B's selection ensures its patrons will be dressed to the nines. 1995 N.W. 86th St., Clive, 515-276-8589; www.mrbclothing.com.

Runners-up: Von Maur; Many Hands Thrift Market

Best Local Women's Clothing Store

Von Maur

This Iowa-founded business made runner-up last year and wins Best Local Women's Clothing Store this year. # NIGHTLIFE

Best Whiskey

Prairie Fire

For the eighth year in a row, Iowa Distilling Company's Prairie Fire whiskey has won Best Whiskey thanks to Best of Des Moines voters. The hot cinnamon flavored spirit is perfect for cocktails, like one of the 29 listed on Iowa Distilling Company's website. Give them all a try, maybe not in one night, but we don't think you'll be disappointed. 4349 Cumming Ave., Cumming, 515-981-4216; www.iowadistilling.com.

Runners-up: Revelton; Jack Daniel's

Best Vodka

Tito's Handmade Vodka

Tito's was the most consumed spirit in the state last year with sales topping $31 million. That's a whole lot of Tito's for bars, restaurants and homes. The smooth, crystal clear spirit goes great as the base for vodka cocktails. www.titosvodka.com.

Runner-up: Zone Vodka; Grey Goose

Best Rum

Steel Drum Rum

Another one of Iowa Distilling Company's creations, Steel Drum Rum, wins its category once again. This spirit is on the sweeter side and made from pure Caribbean molasses, sourced from Caribbean sugar cane. As with Prairie Fire, Iowa Distilling Company has a list of recipes to try. Try the Drunkin' Pumpkin, made with the aforementioned rum, pumpkin syrup, orange juice, and orange bitters, strained over ice and topped with ginger beer. Yum. 4349 Cumming Ave., Cumming, 515-981-4216; www.iowadistilling.com.

Runners-up: RUMCOQUI; Captain Morgan

Best Local Craft Beer

Confluence Brewing Company

Located on the south side of Des Moines, Confluence Brewing Company takes home the Best Local Craft Beer for another year. This year, the brewery has been doing a "Beer-A-Week" initiative, where they bring back an old favorite or present a brand-new beer for a week, all year long. A beer enjoyer's personal heaven. 1235 Thomas Beck Road, Des Moines, 515-285-9005; www.confluencebrewing.com.

Runners-up: Barn Town Brewing; Exile Brewing Company

Best New Local Bar

Monsterama Pubcade

Self-proclaimed "your newest hangout," Monsterama Pubcade has had a monstrous (in a good way) first year. Inside the fantastical-themed bar are tons of arcade games, darts and pool to be played. Add in a bevy of great drinks and a short and simple menu of good eats, and it makes sense why CITYVIEW readers dubbed Monsterama Pubcade as the Best New Local Bar. 3108 S.W. Ninth St., Des Moines, 515-528-2015; www.monsteramapubcade.com.

Runners-up: The Contrary; Shirley's Bar & Grill

Best Local Patio Bar

Big Grove Brewery

The downtown brewery sweeps both Best Local Patio Bar and Best Local Restaurant Bar, for all the reasons mentioned before. Their beer list ranges from light and refreshing, to hoppy, sours and dark and malty. Not only that, but the fully stocked bar can craft up most any cocktail you can imagine. Stop in for a drink on their best in class patio. 555 17th St., Des Moines, 515-777-2337; www.biggrove.com.

Runners-up: The Pelican Post Bar & Grille; Destination Grille

Best Local Irish Pub

Sully's Irish Pub

Make that another year as the Best Local Irish Pub for Sully's. They claim to be the number one seller of Guinness in the state of Iowa. We can confirm they serve the Irish drink and serve it well. With great specials occurring all week long, metro bargoers are treated well by this popular pub. 860 First St., West Des Moines, 515-255-9970; www.sullysdesmoines.com.

Runners-up: Magee's Irish Pub & Eatery; Mickey's Irish Pub

Best Local Dive Bar

Toad's Tavern

This east side bar has made runner-up several times in this category but takes home the title as the Best for 2026. Toad's has all the classic staples of a neighborhood dive bar: unassuming, dimly lit, pool contests, a solid food menu, and drinks at great prices. Spend an evening here and you'll quickly see why Best of Des Moines voters made this selection. 3002 State Ave., Des Moines, 515-264-8623; www.facebook.com/toadstavern/.

Runners-up: Carl's Place; Doc's Lounge

Best Local Fancy-Pants Bar

Winchester Public House

When searching for an upscaled cocktail in a fancy-pants environment, Winchester Public House in Valley Junction is the choice for CITYVIEW readers. Just listen to some of these cocktail names: Butterfly Effect, Dude Abides and Banana Chai Affair. Sounds fancy, doesn't it? There are also plenty of brews on tap and a sharables menu to keep your belly full. 224 Fifth St., West Des Moines, 515-499-4002; www.winchester.pub.

Runners-up: Hello, Marjorie; The Cork 50131

IOWA SPIRITS

HANDCRAFTED, 8 AWARD-WINNING SPIRITS, CRAFT COCKTAIL LOUNGE
IOWADISTILLING.COM

PLEASE DRINK RESPONSIBLY

Best Local Sports Bar The Station on Ingersoll

Catching a game at your local sports bar with the drinks flowing, the food hot and tasty, and the vibes unmatched is an experience worth having. Spend an NFL Sunday at The Station on Ingersoll and watch the hours fly by. Take in a day of baseball, a night of basketball, whichever sport is your favorite, and The Station is going to make it a memorable one. 3124 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-381-0052; www.thestationdsm.com.

Runners-up: Bix & Co.; Doc's Lounge

Best Local Bar (Overall) Toad's Tavern

Toad's Tavern clearly made a positive push last year, taking the top spot in another category after being runner-up the year before. With recurring pool tournaments, friendly service and beer as cold as it is cheap, Toad's wins Best Local Bar (Overall). 3002 State Ave., Des Moines, 515-264-8623; www.facebook.com/toadstavern/.

Runners-up: Doc's Lounge; Iowa Distilling Company

Best Ankeny Bar Jake's Pub

A casual bar in Ankeny, Jake's Pub takes the Best Ankeny Bar honor. Ankeny residents adore this bar, as it reminds them of Ankeny before its rapid growth. A dive bar in a city full of bright, glistening, brand new toys, it stands out in a good, down-home way. 605 N Ankeny Blvd., Ankeny; www.instagram.com/jakespub\_ankeny/.

Runners-up: Yankee Clipper; Whiskey River

Best Drake Area Bar University Library Cafe

University Library Café captures the same two awards it took home last year with Best Local Nachos and, now, Best Drake Area Bar. Someone has to serve up cold drinks and great food to the college students of the area, and, sure, there are plenty to choose from, but Best of Des Moines voters choose University Library Café once more. 3506 University Ave., Des Moines, 515-255-0433; www.thelibrarydm.com.

Runners-up: Lucky Horse Beer & Burgers; Peggy's Tavern

Best Beaverdale Area Bar The Dam Pub

The Dam Pub is nestled between buildings in Beaverdale with bright colors and art adorning the walls. Lights illuminate the patio, and drinks and food satisfy hunger and deliver great times. Stop in for brunch for "where's my dam breakfast," or dinner for a chicken goat cheese pizza. Wacky? Sure. Tasty? No doubt. Worth a stop in one of Des Moines' coziest neighborhoods? According to our readers, absolutely. 2710 Beaver Ave., Des Moines, 515-279-4449; www.dampubdsm.com.

Runners-up: Beaver Tap; GoodSons

Best Downtown Bar The Stuffed Olive

It has been a full year since The Stuffed Olive got an upgrade and moved across the street. Court Avenue bar goers enjoyed it last year, and that sentiment remains this year as it wins Best Downtown Bar. We counted more than 100 different types of martinis on their menu. The classics remain, but why not be adventurous and try the Drunken Monkey, which comes with peanut butter whiskey, Crème de Banana, and caramel, arnished with a monkey. 216 Court Ave., Suite 100, Des Moines, 515-243-4456; www.stuffedolivedsm.com.

Runners-up: Hello, Marjorie; The Lift

Best West Side Bar Shotgun Betty's

Winning this award for another year is Shotgun Betty's. For those who like to attend a bar on the rowdier side, the Best West Side Bar is your destination. Country music blasts, line dances ensue, and the cold beer flows. 5535 Mills Civic Parkway, Suite 100, West Des Moines, 515-309-0744; www.facebook.com/shotgunbetty's.

Runners-up: Doc's Lounge; The Pelican Post Bar & Grille

Best East Village Bar The Blazing Saddle

Opening in 1983, The Blazing Saddle is the oldest gay bar in the city. Their motto is, "Where it's always a double and never a cover!" Two things that are hard to beat. Add in The Saddle Gurls performances and lively music, all located in the heart of the East Village, and it is a recipe for a great time. 416 E Fifth St., Des Moines, 515-246-1299; www.theblazingsaddle.com.

Runners-up: 85 Bar; The Republic on Grand

Best East Bar Toad's Tavern

Toad's Tavern adds another award to its 2026 list; this time it's a spot where it reigns: the Best East Bar. With happy hour from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. (that's a lot of hours of happiness, but we're not complaining), the bar welcomes patrons to enjoy drinks, play pool, catch the game, or even make some new friends. 3002 State Ave., Des Moines, 515-264-8623; www.facebook.com/toadstavern.

Runners-up: Gerri's Bar & Grill; Kelly's Little Nipper

Best South Bar Francie's Bar & Grill

Also home to the Best Local Bar Food is the Best South Bar, Francie's. This bar and grill has been treating the southside to satisfying food and drink since 1987. They have domestics, including local favorites on tap, bottles, cans, seltzers, cocktails and even a solid wine selection — not something you often find at bar and grills. 2100 Wakonda View Drive, Des Moines, 515-285-5207; www.franciesbarandgrill.com.

Runners-up: Angry Goldfish Pub & Eatery; Monsterama Pubcade

Best Local Winery Jasper Winery

Jasper Winery has reached a decade atop the Best Local Winery chart, a feat few others have been able to accomplish any and all categories. Jasper's grapes are grown in full display, making some excellent bottles like their sweet Front Porch or their dry Behind the Shed Red. The winery also has a killer sangria recipe that can be tasted at its weekly summer concert series, which continues to grow in popularity. 2400 George Flagg Parkway, Des Moines, 515-282-9463; www.jasperwinery.com.

Runners-up: Covered Bridges Winery; Cooper's Hawk Winery & Restaurant

Best Local Brewery Confluence Brewing Company

That is back-to-back years for Confluence as the recipient of the Best Local Craft Beer and the Best Local Brewery. Step into this brewery, which also boasts an inviting patio next to Gray's Lake, and start sampling some of their award-winning beers. CITYVIEW readers certainly have. 1235 Thomas Beck Road, Des Moines, 515-285-9005; www.confluencebrewing.com.

Runners-up: Barn Town Brewing; Lua Brewing

Best Local Moscow Mule The Copper Cup

Moscow Mules are most often served in copper cups, so it makes sense that the aptly named Copper Cup in downtown Des Moines serves the best of them, according to Best of Des Moines voters. At this bar, they have plenty of twists on the sweet cocktail. We challenge you to try them all... just not in one sitting. 207 Fourth St., Des Moines, 515-554-2606; www.thecoppercupdm.com.

Runners-up: Gastro Grub & Pub; The Big Steer

Toad's Tavern wins Best Local Bar (Overall), Best East Bar and Best Local Dive Bar thanks to Best of Des Moines voters. Photo courtesy of Toad's Tavern

Best Local Bloody Mary Early Bird Brunch

There are five Bloody Marys on the menu at Early Bird Brunch: the Mary Me, the Big Flocking Bloody, the Triple Bacon Bloody, the Spicy Chili Mary and the E.B. Bloody Mary. Try them all and see which is your favorite. Locations in Ankeny, East Village and West Des Moines, 515-528-2212; www.earlybirdbrunch.com.

Runners-up: Iowa Distilling Company; Mullets

Best Local Bar to Play Games Up-Down

It's hard to beat Up-Down for the Best Local Bar to Play Games. After all, the East Village barcade boasts more than 60 classic arcade games for patrons to enjoy. Hit the favorites from your childhood like Donkey Kong or Pac-Man, or take on some of the new games that make appearances in the sprawling landscape of bright flashing 8-bit lights that is Up-Down's basement. There are also video game-themed cocktails and large, tasty slices of pizza to complete the experience. 500 E. Locust St., Des Moines, 515-243-4322; www.updownarcadebar.com/des-moines.

Runners-up: Monsterama Pubcade; Ricochet

Best Local Place to See Beautiful People Coachlight Clinic & Spa

Des Moines is a beautiful city, from its skyline to its sunsets to its murals and back again. It's only natural that plenty of beautiful people reside here, too. According to CITYVIEW readers, the best place to find those beautiful people is at Coachlight Clinic & Spa. 6420 Coachlight Drive, Suite 200, West Des Moines, 515-221-9999; www.dsmcoachlight.com.

Runners-up: ReNew You Spa & Suites; Doc's Lounge

Best Local Happy Hour Eatery A

Happy hours are aplenty around this city full of elite bars and restaurants, but Eatery A continues to dominate this category for its hard-to-beat deal. From 2-6 p.m., the Mediterranean-inspired restaurant serves half-price wood-fired pizza, beer and wine. 2932 Ingersoll Ave., Des Moines, 515-282-8085; www.eateryadsm.com.

Runners-up: Toad's Tavern; Doc's Lounge

Best Local Bartender Jake Weller, Shotgun Betty's

The Best West Side Bar is once again home to the Best Local Bartender, Jake Weller of Shotgun Betty's. Bartenders have the cure to a broken heart or the jumpstart to a great time when serving up vibes and drinks. Best of Des Moines voters agree on Weller for the second year in a row. 5535 Mills Civic Parkway, Suite 100, West Des Moines, 515-309-0744; www.facebook.com/shotgunbettys.

Runners-up: Zoey Osteen, Gastro Grub and Pub; Cycrena Eischeid, The Cork 50131

Best Local Martini Menu The Stuffed Olive

We mentioned the more than 100 specialty martinis at The Stuffed Olive in its win for the Best Downtown Bar, so it isn't surprising that CITYVIEW readers would also choose it for Best Local Martini Menu. Here is another random selection from the almost endless martini menu: The Pineapple Basil, with New Amsterdam Pineapple Vodka, New Amsterdam Mango Vodka, basil, lime, pineapple and orange juice. We'll take two, please. 216 Court Ave., Suite 100, Des Moines, 515-243-4456; www.stuffedolivedsm.com.

Runners-up: The Lift; The Big Steer

Best Local Margarita Coa Cantina

Coa Cantina wins this award for the second year in a row. Margaritas at Coa Cantina take many different forms, with sweet and spicy options, and even combinations of the two. Give the watermelon margarita a taste, made with Blanco Tequila, house made watermelon puree, lime, tajin and, of course, fresh watermelon. 425 E. Grand Ave., Des Moines, 515-280-3097; www.coacantinadsm.com.

Runners-up: Iowa Distilling Company; Mi Mexico

Best Local Dance Club

Denny Arthur's

Denny Arthur's recently celebrated its 45th anniversary. The cash-only bar brings a more mature crowd to the dance floor if you are wanting to avoid the jumping and shouting found at some other clubs in the city. 2400 86th St. Apt. 7, Urbandale, 515-561-6420; www.facebook.com/over30danceclub/.

Runners-up: Nightengale Cocktail; Shotgun Betty's

Best Local Drag Queen

Domita DeBaun Sanchez

Domita DeBaun Sanchez is a veteran of the local drag scene. Sanchez has developed a large following over the years thanks to her incredible outfits, performances and personality. For the second year in a row, this Saddle Gurl wins the Best Local Drag Queen award as chosen by Best of Des Moines voters. www.solo.to/domitasanchez.

Runners-up: Tyona Diamond; Peaches Diamond

Best Local Place to Karaoke

AJ's on East Court

Karaoke is not everyone's idea of a great time, but with the right environment, even the most sheepish of introverts can be turned into rockstars when the microphone hits their hands. Such is the case at AJ's on East Court. CITYVIEW readers prefer this bar to deliver their favorite shower, car or empty-home ballad to the stage. 419 E. Court Ave., Des Moines, 515-282-1888; www.ajsbar.com.

Runners-up: Doc's Lounge; Spare Time Entertainment

Best Local Place for a Bachelor/Bachelorette Party Your Private Bar

The mobile bartender service keeps busy all year long, working an event for nearly every single day of the year. But, for this category, it is their own venue that gets to shine. The team at Your Private Bar can serve most any event's needs. 1701 25th St., West Des Moines, 515-599-1205; www.yourprivatebar.com.

Runners-up: Spare Time Entertainment; AJ's on East Court

Best Local Trivia Night

Doc's Lounge

Doc's Lounge has found itself as runner-up on several of these awards, but, for the second straight year, they are able to claim Best Local Trivia Night, thanks to Best of Des Moines voters. Trivia night at Doc's is every Tuesday from 7-9 p.m. Show up with your thinking cap on and see if you can be the best, at the best. 8805 Chamberly Blvd., Johnston, 515-278-7090; www.docsinjohnstoniowa.com.

Runners-up: Iowa Distilling Company; Smash Park

Best Local Distillery

Iowa Distilling Company

The third and final award for Iowa Distilling Company makes sense, after all, this is the distillery responsible for the Best Whiskey (Prairie Fire) and Best Rum (Steel Drum Rum). What helps their case, besides the delightful spirits they produce, are the events at their bar. Trivia nights and live music are aplenty here just a short drive south of Des Moines. 4349 Cumming Ave., Cumming, 515-981-4216; www.iowadistilling.com.

Runners-up: Revelton Distilling Company; Foundry Distilling Company

Best Local LGBTQ Hangout

The Blazing Saddle

In addition to The Blazing Saddle's Best East Village Bar award, they also take home the Best Local LGBTQ Hangout award as voted by CITYVIEW readers. As mentioned previously, The Saddle is the city's original gay bar, pours the drinks strong, and brings the vibe to the East Village. 416 E. Fifth St., Des Moines, 515-246-1299; www.theblazingsaddle.com.

Runners-up: The Garden; AJ's on East Court

Best Whiskey Menu

Winchester Public House

Winning this year's Best Whiskey Menu for the second year in a row is also the winner of this year's Best Fancy Pants Bar award: Winchester Public House. The warm, friendly and inviting bar has an excellent selection of whiskeys for the dark spirit drinkers in your life. 224 Fifth St., West Des Moines, 515-499-4002; www.winchester.pub.

Runners-up: Gastro Grub & Pub; Fresko

Best Local Rooftop Bar

Destination Grille

Destination Grille earned runner-up for Best Local Restaurant Patio, among several wins and runners-up, but its rooftop seating is one desired most by CITYVIEW readers. Comfortable seating, TVs to keep your attention, and great food and drink to keep the good times rolling. 2491 E. First St., Grimes, 515-355-1153; www.destinationgrille.com.

Runners-up: The Republic on Grand; The Garden

Best Local Dog-Friendly Bar

Paws & Pints

Plenty of DSM bargoers also have furry friends at home. When these pet owners would normally have to leave man's best friend behind, at Paws & Pints, the dogs are the main guests, and humans are an afterthought. The massive outdoor area can tucker out the most energetic of dogs, all while you sip on a brew or cocktail. 6218 Willowmere Drive, Des Moines, 515-969-2275; www.pawsandpintsdsm.com.

Runners-up: Big Grove Brewery; Sully's Irish Pub

Best Local Mobile Bar Service

Your Private Bar

Planning a party can be difficult for even the most seasoned of hosts. Take one of the party-planning aspects off of your plate with Your Private Bar. A multi-time award winner in this category thanks to Best of Des Moines voters, they bring the bar to you. 1701 25th St., West Des Moines, 515-599-1205; www.yourprivatebar.com.

Runners-up: Top It Off Liquid Catering; Apres Bar Co.

Best Speakeasy

Chicago Speakeasy

Good news for metro area diners, this speakeasy is not difficult to find. Prime rib is a favorite here, hand-cut steaks make the mouth water, and classic cocktails make the night all the more enjoyable. Weeknight specials outside of the prime rib include spaghetti and meatballs, BBQ pork ribs and crispy fried chicken. 1520 Euclid Ave., Des Moines, 515-243-3141; www.chicagospeakeasyrestaurant.com.

CULTURE & RECREATION

Best Local Place to Play Golf Waveland Golf Course

Golf. A game of patience and skill, paired with the sights of rolling hills and forests. Or, if you're like us, sand traps, lakes and the wrong fairways. Either way, metro golfers and CITYVIEW readers voted for Waveland Golf Course as the Best Local Place to Play Golf for another year. With more than 40,000 rounds played here a year, the numbers appear to match up. 4908 University Ave., Des Moines, 515-248-6302; www.golfwaveland.com.

Runners-up: Topgolf; Jester Park Golf Course

Best Local Community to Live In West Des Moines

The neighbor of Iowa's capital may have a similar name, but it also has its fair share of differences. West Des Moines, incorporated in 1893, is home to plenty of its own local legacy restaurants and businesses, as well as the state's largest shopping mall, Jordan Creek, and one of the city's best shopping districts in Valley Junction. Its school district is one that has received plenty of acclaim, and the area hosts family-friendly events all year long, helping to make it Best Local Community to Live In, according to Best of Des Moines voters. www.wdm.iowa.gov/home.

Runners-up: Beaverdale; Ankeny

Best Local Place to Worship Lutheran Church of Hope

Lutheran Church of Hope has churches throughout central Iowa, with branches in West Des Moines, Ankeny, Des Moines, Grimes, Waukee, Ames and several other communities. The church also has an active presence online, where you can catch up on a service or watch from home if you are not able to attend. Main location at 925 Jordan Creek Parkway, West Des Moines, 515-222-1520; www.hopewdm.org.

Runners-up: Plymouth United Church of Christ; Eternity Church

Best Local Nonprofit Animal Rescue League of Iowa

The Animal Rescue League of Iowa wins the Best Local Nonprofit award thanks to CITYVIEW readers. This year, the ARL of Iowa set a record for most adoptions in a single year. The nonprofit is constantly posting tips to help you take care of your pets, success stories from the furry friends they have helped rescue, and information about several other pet services. 5452 N.E. 22nd St., Des Moines, 515-262-9503; www.arl-iowa.org.

Runners-up: ChildServe; Many Hands Thrift Market

Best Local School District Waukee Community School District

The Waukee Community School District has 19 facilities under its watch, fostering the youth of one of Iowa's, and the country's, fastest growing communities. With 14,000 students, it makes the back-to-back winner of this category as the third-largest school district in the state. www.waukeeschools.org.

Runners-up: Des Moines Public Schools; West Des Moines Community Schools

Best Local Party/Event Transportation 515 Party Bus

Drinking and driving is never the right choice. Thanks to 515 Party Bus, you can enjoy your libations and keep the vibes high without having to stress about the drive home. The company has a fleet of party busses from the King Limo Bus to the Kodiak Limo Bus, holding you and up to 40 friends in certain vehicles. 515-650-7463; www.515partybus.com.

Runners-up: Front Row Transportation; Charters on Vine

Best Local Place to Hold a Corporate Event/Party Animal Rescue League of Iowa

It may surprise you that the Best Local Nonprofit also hosts an excellent party. The ARL of Iowa has indoor and outdoor event spaces for meetings, trainings, wedding receptions, holiday parties and more. One hundred percent of the proceeds go toward the animals in their care, so getting a little too tipsy at your work Christmas party was actually a good thing. 5452 N.E. 22nd St., Des Moines, 515-262-9503; www.arl-iowa.org.

Runners-up: Iowa Wild; Spare Time Entertainment

Best Local Place to Have a Kid’s Birthday Party

Animal Rescue League of Iowa

The ARL is racking up the awards this year thanks to Best of Des Moines voters. Adding to its trophy haul this year is a category they won last year as well. If your child is a fan of furry friends, and, let’s face it, most are, the ARL can host with the best of them. You might just take home your next pet while you are at it. 5452 N.E. 22nd St., Des Moines, 515-262-9503; www.arl-iowa.org.

Runners-up: Let’s Slumber It; Iowa Wild

Best Local Place to Take Your Kids

Blank Park Zoo

When Abraham Harry Blank donated the money for a children’s zoo in the 1960s, he had no idea that it would one day be the Best Local Place to Take Your Kids. That’s probably every local philanthropist’s goal, right? Accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, the zoo houses animals from across the globe, educates the area, and makes for one great afternoon. 7401 S.W. Ninth St., Des Moines, 515-285-4722; www.blankparkzoo.com.

Runners-up: Iowa Wild; Spare Time Entertainment

Best Local Place to Take Visitors

Greater Des Moines Botanical Garden

The sights, smells and overall friendly and welcoming vibe inside the Greater Des Moines Botanical Garden helped CITYVIEW readers make this choice. Add in their signature events like Dome after Dark, Botanical Blues, Dome for the Holidays, and several others, and we can understand why this landmark was chosen Best Local Place to Take Visitors. 909 Robert D. Ray Drive, Des Moines, 515-323-6290; www.dmbotanicalgarden.com.

Runners-up: Pappajohn Sculpture Park; Iowa State Capitol

Best Local Annual Event

ARL Raise Your Paw Auction

Did you miss them? Here is the ARL being honored again, this time for their Raise Your Paw Auction. It is the nonprofit’s largest event of the year and helps support the thousands of pets in their care. There is food, live music, and plenty of silent auction items, typically held in April each year. 5452 N.E. 22nd St., Des Moines, 515-262-9503; www.arl-iowa.org.

Runners-up: Iowa State Fair; Des Moines Arts Festival

Best Local Sports Team

Iowa Cubs

The Cubbies are once more the area’s Best Local Sports Team as voted by CITYVIEW readers. The Iowa Cubs are the longest running affiliated AAA team with its pro franchise, the Chicago Cubs. Each year brings the chance to see who the next brightest and best future MLB player will be right here at home. One Line Drive, Des Moines, 515-243-6111; www.milb.com/iowa.

Runners-up: Iowa Wild; Des Moines Buccaneers

Best Local Place to Go Swimming

Clive Aquatic Center

Each summer brings the opportunity to get out of the sun and into the water. Iowans will be hard pressed to find better relief from the heat than a nice afternoon spent at the pool. The pool of choice in 2026 for CITYVIEW readers? The Clive Aquatic Center. 1801 N.W. 114th St., Clive, 515-440-0599; www.cityofclive.com/parkandrecreation/aquatic\_center/index.php.

Runners-up: Life Time; Ashworth Swimming Pool

Best Local Place to Bowl

Spare Time Entertainment

Spare Time Entertainment wins the Best Local Place to Bowl award for another year. Whether you roll a strike, spare, split or even a gutter ball doesn’t matter here, as good times are aplenty. Also at Spare Time is a full menu, arcade, escape rooms and more. 340 Jordan Creek Parkway, West Des Moines, 515-414-2824; www.sparetimeentertainment.com/desmoines.

Runners-up: Val Lanes; B&B Theatres Ankeny & B-Roll Bowling

Best Local Indoor Sporting Event

Iowa Wild

While the hockey players do their thing on the ice, the rest of the Iowa Wild staff are also hard at work making sure the gameday experience is one to remember. Often recognized around the American Hockey League as having some of the league’s best marketing, it’s no wonder Best of Des Moines voters have a great time with the Iowa Wild. 233 Center St., Des Moines, 515-564-8700; www.iowawild.com.

Runners-up: Des Moines Buccaneers; Iowa Barnstormers

Best Local Outdoor Sporting Event

Iowa Cubs

The snow melts, the sun comes out, the I-Cubs hit the field, and the fans take to the stands. Each summer, the Iowa Cubs give the fans 144 chances to watch the Best Local Sports Team play in the Best Local Outdoor Sporting Event. That's a lot of chances. Don't take them for granted, CITYVIEW readers sure aren't. 1 Line Drive, Des Moines, 515-243-6111; www.iowacubs.com.

Runners-up: Iowa State Football; Principal Charity Classic

Best Local Farmers Market

Des Moines Downtown Farmers Market

This year will be the 50th season of the Des Moines Downtown Farmers Market. While it may not have 50 Best Local Farmers Market awards to its name (though it might have, had we been around then), it is once again voted the best. The Court Avenue district is jam packed every Saturday with jellies, arts and crafts, foods of all kinds, flowers and more from May until October. 300 Court Ave., Des Moines, 515-286-4950; www.dsmpartnership.com/desmoinesfarmersmarket.

Runners-up: Valley Junction Farmers Market; Uptown Ankeny Farmers Market

Best Local Camping Spot

Jester Park

Just outside of Des Moines, a camper's dream awaits at Jester Park. There are 148 campsites along the lakeshore, 80 with electric, and more than 1,500 acres of land to explore in the area. Whether you set up shop in a massive RV, or like to rough in tents, Jester Park has what you need right here in central Iowa. 12130 N.W. 128th St., Granger, 515-323-5338; www.polkcountyiowa.gov/conservation/parks-trails/jester-park.

Runners-up: Cutty's Des Moines Camping Club; Prairie Flower Campground

Best Local Place to Have an Adult Birthday Party

Your Private Bar

Just because you turn 21, 30, 40, 50 or 60 (wow, you are getting old), and beyond does not mean the party has to stop. There are plenty of reasons to celebrate yourself, a friend, or a loved one, but birthdays are arguably the best. And Your Private Bar is the place for the party, according to CITYVIEW readers. 1701 25th St., West Des Moines, 515-599-1205; yourprivatebar.com.

Runners-up: Spare Time Entertainment; Let's Slumber It

Best Local Wedding Venue

Magnolia Farms

Just a few minutes outside the hustle and bustle of Des Moines, one will find Magnolia Farms. This modern, charming farmhouse was built from scratch in 2020 and has been celebrating brides and grooms alike with success ever since. 34386 Old Portland Road, Adel, 515-443-3393; www.magnoliafarmsia.com.

Heroics Sports Lounge

BY JACKIE WILSON

Ingersoll bar showcases women's sporting events, but men are welcome, too.

Des Moines' newest sports bar, Heroics, is like most any sports bar in some ways — a full bar, fascinating conversations and the latest game on the big-screen TV. However, there is one distinction that sets it apart from other sports bars — all the games shown feature women athletes.

Basketball, hockey, roller derby and whatever women's sport that is televised. Plus, music videos are aired when there is not a major game on.

Heroics Sports Lounge opened up in December 2025 at 2005 Ingersoll in the old Juniper Moon location. Co-owner Jami Behun visited a similar concept bar in Portland three years ago called the Sports Bra. She became intrigued with the concept of featuring only-women's sports, citing the "Caitlin Clark" effect on its popularity. As the Sports Bra began a franchise, Behun worried they might open in Des Moines. Luckily, it didn't, which catapulted Heroics into action.

Behun says the public has misread media reports.

"People get confused. This is not a women's-only bar. Men are welcome. It's not a lesbian bar. We're a queer-owned LGBTQ, and I want to provide a safe space for all

HEROICS SPORTS LOUNGE

2005 Ingersoll Ave., Suite 101, Des Moines
515-369-7786
www.heroicssportslounge.com
Wednesday - Thursday: 3-10 p.m.
Friday: 3-11 p.m.
Saturday: 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.
Sunday: 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

people to come. People feeling safe makes my heart happy."

Heroics on a Friday night proved lively. The Vinyl and Rose Basketball Club game played on the tube. A mural painted by local artist Kristin Jones takes up an entire wall. There are several colorful seating combinations aside from the bar. A disco ball in a basketball hoop provides a sparkly pop of color.

Happy Hour is Wednesday through Saturday from 3-6 p.m. It includes $2 off wells, domestic and tap beers, $6 wine, plus $8 select classic cocktails.

Their signature and classic cocktail menu includes sports-related names, including The G.O.A.T. made with Corazon Blanco, triple sec and agave, for $10. The Cyclone Espresso is Midnight Bean Espresso Vodka, Buffalo Trace Bourbon Cream topped with cold brew coffee for $10. The Heroics Hail Mary is made with Absolut Citron, cranberry, triple sec and lime for $10.

Each one of the cocktails or wines on their signature list has been created, crafted or led by women businesses.

A popcorn machine pops up free popcorn for patrons. A couple who frequents bars that serves free popcorn rates the taste, and they report that Heroics offers the right salty crunch combination. I agree with the top rating — and the unique way to explore local bars.

No other food is served, and patrons can bring in their own food. The owners plan on serving pizza and snack food in the future and hope to offer foods from next-door Palms DSM.

So far, they haven't had any local athletes visit, but they are ready to welcome any who stop by — especially Iowa native Catlin Clark. With the Super Bowl on Feb. 8, Behun is contemplating airing the game.

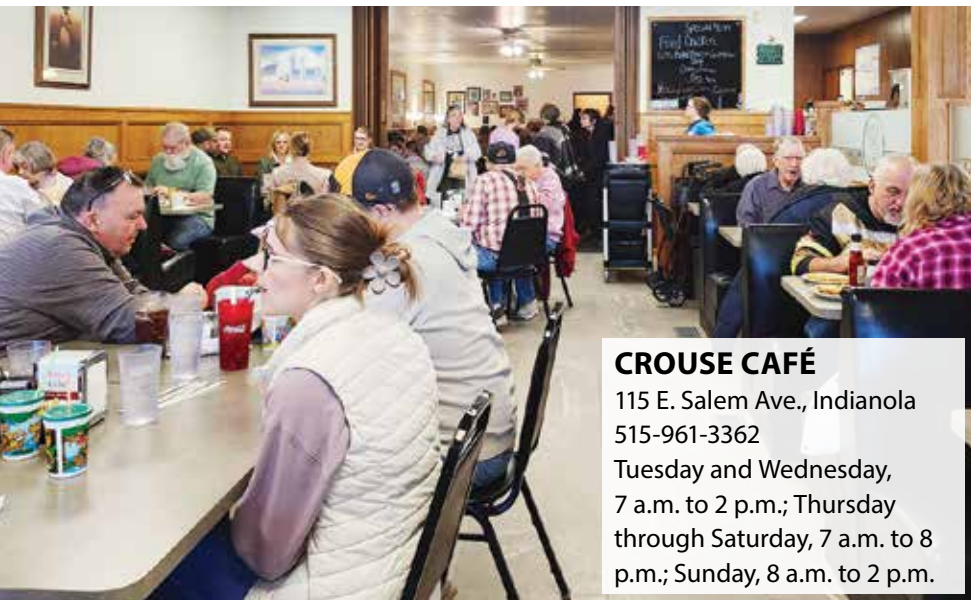

"I'm not sure yet. We may make an exception," Behun reflects. "I want to stick to our mission of creating a space dedicated to women."

She invites the public to stop in, saying, "I'm thankful for the patrons who have supported us with all the positive comments. Come in and check us out." ■

Homemade history at Crouse Café

“Homemade from scratch” is not an exaggeration at Crouse.

Crouse Cafe on a Sunday

Small-town cafés are so precious to nostalgia addicts that it is difficult to find much of anything negative written about them, even on the many social media platforms that attract the meanest critics. The reality is that most of small-town cafés are average at best, employing all the kitchen short cuts that keep labor costs minimum and top quality scarce. It is as if they are graded by the same people who give blue ribbons to everybody who just shows up and straight A's to everyone period.

What changes all that is a model so thoroughly honest and faithful to the hard work of true old fashioned goodness that it reinvents judgement of the entire genre. Such a place is Crouse Café, just off the Indianola square now since the 1960s and in small-town Iowa since 1946.

“Homemade from scratch” is not an exaggeration at Crouse; it's a mantra. Gravies are made without anything from cans or packets. Fried chicken is cooked in huge cast iron skillets. Things that are almost compulsory menu items in the family diner business are truly scratch made. Thus, mashed potatoes, baked beans and coleslaw all make visitors wonder why most restaurants make such lesser versions of these things.

My most recent among scores of visits to Crouse was on a Sunday around noon. As expected, we waited 20 minutes for a table in the 100-seat, three-room café. That gave us time to check out the farm art on the walls that reflects a time even older than Crouse's origin. Customers looked like Iowa State Fair goers would look if the fair were held in winter. Overalls and suspenders were as well represented as the jackets and ties of church goers and the sweats of local schools.

One menu each from 1947 and 1964 reminded that no significant changes have been made, other than prices. When not compared to yesteryear, the prices are super bargains. Two pieces of fried chicken, with beans, slaw, mashed potatoes and gravy cost $10.99 and included a complimentary basket of dinner rolls and butter.

Other scratch-made specialties include breaded pork chops, hot beef sandwiches, liver and onions, pot roast, French fried shrimp, catfish, and steak. All are also represented on the historic menus on the wall.

The two most popular aspects of Crouse — pie and breakfast — are also carryovers from 75 years ago. The pies are, of course, homemade daily from scratch. Savvy customers will order theirs at the get-go, knowing some will likely sell out before they finish dinner.

Retired Des Moines Register sports reporter John Naughton, who has visited more small-town cafés than anyone I ever knew, thinks the cherry pie is a bucket list item for people who eat desserts. The first raisin cream pie I ever tasted was Crouse's — decades before I read that a California Asian living in Brooklyn had proclaimed it “Iowa's official favorite pie.” Five or six different types of pie are made each day, except Monday.

Crouse's pan fried chicken dinner

Crouse's hot beef sandwich

Breakfast has seen the most changes. Eggs Benedict, American fried potatoes, and several types of omelets have joined the traditional bacon (ham, or sausage) with eggs, hashed browns and toast.

Otherwise, expect a throwback experience here. I have a T-shirt I bought at Crouse on their 50th anniversary. The logo is the same as today's, except this is their 75th anniversary. Crouse's charms are so powerful that I once took a first-timer there for lunch. Afterwards, she began looking for real estate in Indianola. Vibes like that don't happen very often. ■

Jamie Farrington at Lachele's Fine Foods

Over burgers, fries, tots and real sugar soft drinks, we talked about Farrington's wine/coffee bar, The Inklings and Romance in all its magnificent nuances.

EAT & DRINK

Jamie Farrington is a chef/mortgage broker who is opening The Rabbit Room in Johnston Feb. 9. To our minds, only a deep Romantic would open a wine bar devoted to the works of The Inklings, an early 20th century gang of Oxford professors who met regularly in the back room of The Eagle and Child Pub. C.S. Lewis and J.R. Tolkien led the group when they were not creating wondrous worlds and underworlds of imagination and romance.

Since this is the month of Romance, we asked Farrington to lunch, and he chose Lachele's Fine Food, a bustling burger joint with two Des Moines stores serving smash burgers of exceptional quality. Over burgers, fries, tots and real sugar soft drinks, we talked about Farrington's wine/coffee bar, The Inklings and Romance in all its magnificent nuances.

Very few people are familiar with Tolkien or Lewis, other than the Peter Jackson movies of the former's "Ring" trilogy and the Broadway hit of the latter's "Screwtape Letters," which is coming to Hoyt Sherman in March. What led Farrington to this moment?

"After high school, I spent six years in the Navy, then moved to Oklahoma. My intention was to transfer to Iowa State and study veterinarian medicine. But, some of my credits didn't transfer to ISU, so I went to Des Moines Area Community College to retake the basic credits. While there, I became interested in the Iowa Culinary Institute (ICI) and transferred there to become a chef.

"After ICI, I worked at Bistro Montage, Gateway Market, Gusto and Sodexo at the Principal. I always worked more than one job because I have three children. Then, along came COVID and its massive layoffs. I got my mortgage license, but along came 9% inflation. No one was refinancing, and not many could afford to buy homes. I worked for Midwest Ambulance as a dispatcher, for Stoney Creek Inn and at Wine Styles for Allan and Gina Graham. They were ready to retire and helped me find a way to buy the store."

Where did the idea to combine wine with books come from?

"I have always been an avid reader. My wife, a poet, and I took a trip with the boys to Iceland. In Reykjavik, we found a wine bar that was also a book store. I loved it."

F. Scott Fitzgerald, a great Romantic, said that sentimental people always believe that things will change but Romantics have a "desperate confidence that they won't." Book stores have been disappearing rapidly since the rise of big block stores like Barnes & Noble, and then Amazon. How do you buck those odds?

"I think the store needs versatility. We will open in the early morning for coffee, close and reopen for wine late afternoon. The books are not for sale but to stimulate conversation. I want people to take them off the shelves and read them. I will pair wine with small dishes, and I will have ice cream. I have been told by many that my homemade ice cream is exceptional."

Those are very long hours.

"We will open at 6 a.m. till 10 in the morning. Then close and reopen at 3 p.m. till 10 p.m. I like the quiet times. I am often sleepless."

The recent death of Rob Reiner resurrected movies like "Sleepless in Seattle." That recalls the Meg Ryan character's situational hypocrisy. She played an independent book store owner who considered big chains to be evil. Yet she was frequently running off for coffee — at Starbucks.

"We pigeon hole ourselves into what we like and consume things that restrict us. There is a whole other world out there. Books and conversation can open doors to it. That's why I like to always try a different wine, or take a different wine to friends each time I visit. I have always tried to be open to new experiences, at least since high school when I gave up vegetarianism. I want to push myself and maybe others into new comfort zones — of wine, food, books and ideas."

How do you push a new wine, or idea on people?

"Allan was great at reading people. He was so good at it that they trusted him with judgments — wine choices for starters — because they thought he knew what they would like as well as they did. At Gateway, customers would come in looking for Abbe ("The Wine Lady" Davidson) because they trusted her. It took time before they would ask for me. Trust like that opens doors to new experiences. That's a premise to the store."

Books are a key part of The Rabbit Room furnishings. What kind of books will Farrington stock?

"I am building that library. It's not easy with the internet having taken down the used book store world. I will have the Harvard Classics and the World Book set. They are references that provide more depth than an AI search. I am shooting for about 500 books with strengths in literary classics and fiction. But, I will also have books of more precise interest — 'Agriculture Practices of the 1940's,' the 'History of Keokuk County.' "

Keokuk County is curious in that it does not include Keokuk the city.

"Yes, and Des Moines County is home to Keokuk but nowhere near Des Moines."

What kind of events does Farrington have planned for The Rabbit Room?

"A book of the day discussion. Story telling time — people telling or reading stories is such a comfort. That's why it is popular in nursing homes and general therapy. Bible Studies, because the Bible is a collection of paradigms — all great stories. Bottom line, I want to bring people together. Discussion and debate can do that when they are civil."

Wine keeps things civil, at least compared to whiskey. Because Farrington is opening in February, we had to ask him about Romance. What are his favorite romantic novels?

" 'Wuthering Heights' and 'Jane Eyre' must top any list. But Tolkien's Ring Cycle is my favorite. Lúthien is the daughter of the elf king Thingol and the goddess Melian. Beren is human. Yet, she gives up her immortality to be with him. I cried when I read that, and I cried when I saw that Tolkien and his wife are buried with tombstones that refer to them as 'Lúthien' and 'Beren,' their nicknames for each other." ■

‘Honeyeater’

This is not an easy book to read. Just throwing that out there if you’re not the kind of person who likes a challenging read. This is a slow-burn, convoluted, stream of consciousness style story that performs literary acrobatics while it breaks your heart.

If you are up for a complicated, foggy whirl of beautiful prose and haunted characters, then get ready; this is a doozy.

Charlie wants out of the flooded mess of Bellworth, a town full of childhood ghosts and regret. However, before he can break free, a woman with roses piercing her skin turns his world inside out. Grace drags Charlie into the depths of the secrets and mysteries of this creepy town, and terrifying choices await the pair when the muck comes loose.

Dizzy, unsettling, twisted and experimental, this is a whirlwind of a book I read twice, just to catch the things I missed the first time. I may tackle it a third time, to revel in the beauty of the writing. Be prepared for this one to seep into your bones in the best way. ■ — Review by Julie Goodrich

‘Saltcrop’

Sisterhood is one of those things that is endlessly fascinating to me. I didn’t grow up with a sister, and like many people who are always seeking the unfamiliar, stories about the complexities of sisters draw me in. “Saltcrop” delivers a powerful jolt of a story about sisters searching a crumbling world for answers, for themselves and, ultimately, for hope.

Skipper and Carmen are as unlike as two people can be, but they are sisters, nonetheless. Brought together by a strange plea from their eldest, accomplished sister Nora, they will have to travel through a world in the throes of ecological collapse and a society that may be imploding even faster.

Full of richly realized characters, strange vistas and threaded through with a strange sense of unease, this is a wildly beautiful story told with immense skill and pitch-perfect pacing. Kitasei is a powerful writer, and she absolutely shines in this one. I flew through it and have been recommending it to anyone who likes a good family drama, an ecological horror story or just a good heroine’s journey. ■ — Review by Julie Goodrich

FILM REVIEW

BY DAVID ROWLEY

‘The Rip’ runs on greed, paranoia and misdirection

Loyalty is the first casualty when millions in unclaimed cash is up for grabs.

In the shadowy glow of Joe Carnahan’s “The Rip,” the most dangerous criminals are not the cartel operatives lurking off-screen but the badges meant to protect and serve. This Netflix thriller, “inspired by true events” within the Miami Police Department, is a masterfully constructed pressure cooker of paranoia, a film where loyalty is the first casualty when millions in unclaimed cash is up for grabs. With a stellar ensemble led by real-life besties Matt Damon and Ben Affleck, “The Rip” delivers a gripping, high-octane and character-driven experience that prioritizes who-done-it tension over explosive spectacle.

The film opens with a terrific, brutal sequence: the ambush and murder of respected Captain Jackie Velez (Lina Esco). With her final act, she sends a cryptic text about a “rip” — police slang for a cash seizure. Six weeks later, with her case cold and bureaucratic frustration boiling, newly promoted Lieutenant Dane Dumars (Matt Damon) acts on her lead. He assembles his tight-knit Tactical Narcotics Team (TNT), including his volatile old friend Detective Sergeant J.D. Byrne (Ben Affleck), the calculating Mike Ro (Steven Yeun), and detectives Numa Baptiste (Teyana Taylor) and Lolo Salazar (Catalina Sandino Moreno). Their target: a derelict house at the end of a sleepy cul-de-sac, expected to hold a modest score.

Occupied by a young woman named Desi (Sasha Calle), her late-grandmother’s house contains barrels neatly packed with more than $20 million. This amount changes things from a simple rip to a life-altering temptation. Dane’s immediate decision to withhold the true amount from his superiors is the first crack in the team’s foundation. As they are forced to hole up and count the mountain of cash on-site — a procedural requirement that makes them sitting ducks — the initial adrenaline curdles into suspicion. The streets outside remain eerily empty; no cartel enforcers arrive. The silence is not relief but an accusation. As one character notes, what began as a dangerous job starts to feel “more and more like an inside operation.”

Carnahan and Michael McGrale construct a fast-paced, brilliantly claustrophobic mystery. Much of the film unfolds within the stash house. Juanmi Azpiroz’s cinematography, employing an ultra-wide aspect ratio and a monochromatic, Michael Mann-esque palette, drenches everything in oppressive gloom. The sun is conspicuously absent in the Sunshine State, replaced by night skies and interior shadows that hide as much as they reveal. This visual style does well to mimic the narrative: nothing is clear, everyone is partially obscured, and trust becomes impossible to discern.

The film’s greatest strength is its exceptional cast and the non-stop adrenalin ride that kicks off and does not let up until the final frame. This is not a story of cartoonish villains but of flawed individuals grappling with desperation, grief and the tantalizing power of escape. Matt Damon’s Dane is a raw nerve buried under a stoic facade, a man grieving his young son and shouldering a promotion he knows has bred resentment. Ben Affleck’s J.D. is all simmering rage and wounded pride, his friendship (and competition) with Dane fraying into something dangerous. Their real-life chemistry makes their conflict uniquely compelling; when they throw down, it feels like watching a foundational bond rupture.

The script is tight and focused, layering twists with purposeful misdirection, occasionally giving the “Ocean’s Eleven”-esque style of showing audiences where the misdirections happened as the plot unfolds. The central question — who is clean, and who is dirty? — is sustained through meticulous editing that cuts between reaction shots, encouraging the audience to play detective alongside the characters.

However, “The Rip” is not without its flaws. As the tension culminates, Carnahan pivots to more conventional, loud action sequences. A chase involving a standard police cruiser and a heavy armored vehicle, and a lone detective pursuing an armed suspect through woods at night, stretch believability in ways the earlier, character-focused scenes carefully avoid. These moments feel like a concession to genre expectations and momentarily pull focus from the intricate human drama that makes the film so compelling. Additionally, a late-epilogue set on a conspicuously fake-looking Florida beach undermines the gritty authenticity established (and, honestly, feels more like an intimate moment of mutual assurance between Damen and Affleck on their decision to release a straight-to-streaming movie rather than a theatrical release).

Yet, these foibles do not ruin the experience. “The Rip” succeeds because it trusts its audience to follow a complex plot while exploring potent themes of institutional corruption, economic desperation and the corrosive tendency of temptation. It is a film more interested in the messiness of motives than the cleanliness of a shootout; more invested in the crackle of distrust between friends than in generic cartel villains. While its descent into a more routine action finale prevents it from reaching heights like “The Oceans” series or “Heat,” it is a consistently engaging and satisfyingly tense ride from start to finish. It proves that sometimes the most gripping heist is not the one planned by an outlaw, but the one that happens in the hearts and minds of those sworn to uphold the law. ■

makes his return to theaters

with this gonzo time-traveling adventure, his first feature in a decade. Academy Award winner Sam Rockwell stars as a scraggly citizen agent from the future who beams back to modern-day Los Angeles — in a Norms Restaurant, to be precise — on a mission to save humanity from impending AI-driven apocalypse. Enlisting a ragtag team of unsuspecting diners — played by Juno Temple, Zazie Beetz, Michael Peña and the consistently excellent Haley Lu Richardson — they ditch their smartphones and barrel into battle in this relentless dark comedy thrill ride.

“CRIME 101”

R | 140 minutes

Director: Bart Layton

Writers: Bart Layton, Don

Winslow

Stars: Chris Hemsworth, Mark

Ruffalo, Halle Berry

Set against the sun-bleached grit of Los Angeles, “CRIME 101” weaves the tale of an elusive thief (Chris Hemsworth) whose high-stakes heists unfolding along the iconic 101 freeway have mystified police. When he eyes the score of a lifetime with hopes of this being his final job, his path collides with a disillusioned insurance broker (Halle Berry) who is facing her own crossroads, forcing the two to collaborate. Determined to crack the case, a relentless detective (Mark Ruffalo) closes in on the operation, raising the stakes even higher. As the multimillion-dollar heist approaches, the line between hunter and hunted begins to blur, and all three are forced to confront the cost of their choices — and the realization that there is no turning back.

“Wuthering Heights”

R | 136 minutes

Director: Emerald Fennell

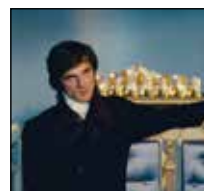

Writers: Emily Brontë, Emerald

Fennell

Stars: Jacob Elordi, Margot

Robbie, Owen Cooper

Academy Award-winning writer and director Emerald Fennell takes on Emily Brontë’s quintessential gothic novel. A passionate and tumultuous love story set against the backdrop of the Yorkshire moors, “Wuthering Heights” follows Heathcliff (Elordi) and Catherine (Robbie) as desire gives way to obsession — and vengeance ripples across generations. After decades of adaptations by filmmakers from William Wyler to Luis Buñuel, Emerald Fennell’s glossy reimagining rejects strict fidelity in favor of an unconventional reinvention for a new generation. ■

An explosion of shows in the month of love

The calendar looks like a cultural Whitman's Sampler with its variety.

We're past the January scarcity of performing arts opportunities, finally pushing into a February filled with a variety of alluring options. From a classic murder mystery to a sassy re-interpretation princess musical to Pooh and Oliver. Add an internet-based twist on Jane Austen and the national touring hit, "Kimberly Akimbo," and theatres are coming alive. Additional offerings from the Des Moines Symphony, Ballet Des Moines, and the Central Iowa Wind Ensemble mean that love is definitely in the air this February. At least, love of performing arts.

Some shows of special note

February renews many performing arts groups' seasons. With Valentine's Day infusing the entire month with love, especially the love of the arts, the calendar looks like a cultural Whitman's Sampler with its variety.

When Agatha Christie's name is bandied about, theatre-lovers pay attention. The Playhouse produces the longest-running play in the world, "The Mousetrap." This murder mystery promises a delectable denouement after a decades-long absence from central Iowa stages.

Family fare brings Winnie the Pooh (Des Moines Young Artists' Theatre) and Oliver (CAP Theatre) to engaging life. Elders should take advantage of such shared experience live theatre opportunities when such companies as these two are producing shows.

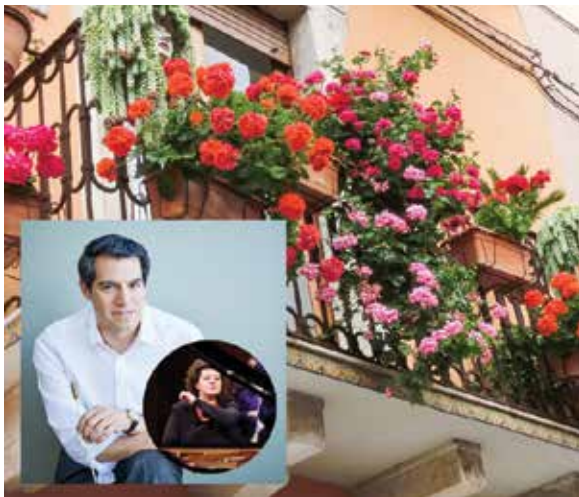

Tallgrass Theatre Company continues its stellar programming with a sassy, attitude-filled musical, "Disenchanted!" Princesses strip away their veneer of demureness, giving audiences a jocular journey through a fairy tale world.

Still stretching its aesthetic range, Ankeny Community Theatre brings a modern, internet-laced interpretation to patchwork of appeal in "Pride @ Prejudice." Jane Austen even intervenes through her letters as internet interplay is anchored by love and humor.

Lightning on stage, not in a bottle

"The Lightning Thief: The Percy Jackson Musical" breaks from the usual tradition of Kate Goldman programming of shows about an hour long. This is a full-length Broadway musical. From the advance buzz circulating in central Iowa, this column wanted to precede its early-March run with plenty of notice for patrons to capture a seat for what promises to be an epic musical immersion into an alluring retelling based on Greek mythology.

Rick Riordan's initial volume of his Percy Jackson and the Olympian series in 2005 became a middle grade children's fantasy action-adventure novel sensation. Adapted to cinema (2010), then to the stage (2023),

Miguel Harth-Bedoya leads the Orchestra over Valentine's Day weekend, featuring Tchaikovsky's beautiful "Romeo and Juliet." He also leads a free maestro class with attendees receiving a free ticket to the concert. Photo credit: Des Moines Symphony the Playhouse is one of the largest community theatre producers of this show in Iowa. In it, teenager Percy Jackson discovers he is a demigod and embarks on a quest to find Zeus's stolen lightning bolt to prevent a war among the gods. "Center Stage" asked director, David VanCleave, about the special appeal for the Kate Goldman Family Series.

Center Stage: What makes directing a Kate Goldman show special?

David VanCleave: The Kate Goldman Family Series has a long history of being the first theatre experience for many young audience members, which can be such a transformative moment with lasting impacts. It's also common to see multiple generations come together to see a show, allowing us to play a role in core family memories. That's an extreme honor. The Kate Goldman series was my first theatre experience as an audience member (1999), actor (2000), and director (2012), so it will always hold a special place in my heart. I've also watched my nieces and nephews come alive in the audience, dancing along with actors without a care in the world. There's nothing more magical than that.

Center Stage: Talk about KGFS shows based on children's literature.

David VanCleave: Plays based on literature have a built-in jumping off point for the production team. The original literature can help inspire the look and feel of the world of the play and provide valuable insight on the play's themes and character motivations. There's also a different energy when audiences are already fans of the characters — they're not just watching a play; they're visiting their friends. Rick Riordan's Percy Jackson series has a huge and passionate fandom — something that was clear throughout auditions. Not only was it the largest turnout I've seen, but the actors connected with the material in really profound and personal ways. It's also been a delightful challenge thinking of various easter eggs to include in our production — specific costume details, staging choices, etc. that fans will recognize immediately. ■

Thieves, cons and native roots

The Gateway to America is more than an arch.

ARTS &amp; ENTERTAINMENT

Henry Payer's "The Wandering Winnebago." Courtesy Des Moines Art Center

The juiciest story in the art world last month was that of Thomas Doyle, a Kansas-born con man who has been arrested numerous times under at least five different names. Wall Street Journal's Jenny Strasburg catapulted Doyle to the big time as far as infamy goes telling how he conned a revered London art dealer and Bruce Springsteen's long time manager Jon Landau over "Portrait of a Girl" by Jean-Baptiste-Camille Corot.

Landau was a Rolling Stone reporter in the early 1970s when he wrote, "I have seen the future of rock & roll, and his name is Bruce Springsteen." Then he quit his job and became The Boss' manager. He bought the Corot masterpiece from Doyle, although he had turned it down several times before. Doyle sold it for a super bargain price, about an eighth of its value. You get what you pay for.

Doyle planned a getaway by sending the dealer, who was never paid, a confession stating he planned to "turn on the Moody Blues, open a bottle of bourbon and eat my 1911 acp for dessert," referring to a semiautomatic pistol long used by the U.S. military. In truth, Doyle was arrested in Connecticut, where he had been living for weeks out of his car in a hotel parking lot.

As a Midwest chauvinist, our favorite story was that of the elite media discovering the awe-inspiring Anselm Kieffer exhibition "Becoming the Sea" in St. Louis. Even CBS did features on it, and it usually takes an act of God to get them to recognize anything that originates anywhere between the American coasts. Kieffer hung seven 30-foot-tall paintings, made with lead and ash, of the Mississippi and Rhine rivers in the St. Louis Museum of Art. It was a grand show that reminded even New York critics that the Gateway to America is more than an arch.

Locally, the big story was that Hoyt Sherman Theater's age-appropriate pipe organ, a gift from the Maloof brothers (owners of the Sacramento Kings and The Palms hotel-casino in Las Vegas), will cost $187,000 to install. That's nearly $60,000 more than Landau paid for his stolen masterpiece.

Touts

February brings Des Moines two art events that also reflect historic times. Edgaard Camacho is a French-born Venezuelan whose journalistic and artistic works have forced him into exile in Des Moines. The depiction of a mass murder, seen by the artist, caught the interest of the Venezuelan National Cultural Center early this century. He was called to be part of "La Megaexposición: The Best of Venezuelan Art of the 21st Century." By the time that touring national art show took place, he had already found exile to the United States.

Moberg gives his artist a local presence that should be good for both Moberg and Vail. There may be more to follow as Moberg and Vail contemplate a more permanent partnership.

Des Moines Art Center launched an exhibition of Henry Payer, a Ho Chunk (white man's name — Winnebago) mixed media artist who seriously explores his native and post-appropriation roots in "Aagakināq Hacıwi: We Live Opposite Each Other."

This show, through June 17, is rife with delightful ironies and anachronisms. For instance, Payer likes to work on ledger paper, which was introduced to the Ho Chunk with their census, monetary transactions with the U.S. government, and even as legal tender. That gives Payer's surname an irony of historic proportions.

Payer also has considerable fun exploring ironic takes on the Iowa recreational vehicle company that shares the name given to the Ho Chunk, most likely on ledger paper. ■

Visual learning

Nathan Wright is an illustrator who performs graphic recording and live notetaking.

BY JACKIE WILSON

Participating in a company meeting can be boring. The prospect of sitting through yet another PowerPoint presentation elicits yawns among restless employees.

Yet, when Nathan Wright is at the meeting, folks perk up. They are looking at Wright, drawing live illustrations of the concepts they have just talked about. Even though it is corporate speak, the presentation is engaging and entertaining.

Wright is an illustrator who performs graphic recording and live notetaking. Throughout a meeting, Wright puts ideas and bullet points into engaging and colorful graphics, also known as sketch notes.

“The point is to make an event more exciting. People are visual learners,” he says. At the end of a meeting, a digital frame or outline of the meeting is given to clients. “People leave a conference with big ideas but often forget what was said in a meeting,” he explains. “This wraps up concepts in a digitized frame.”

The feedback is positive.

“Clients love it. It beats a PowerPoint summary, and attendees love it because it makes the event more exciting.”

In addition, he creates another popular graphic called Journey Mapping. These are trendy, cartoon-like overviews that visually explain a project, goal or vision board. For example, the president of Grand View University wanted a way to communicate to the public what their vision was with an easy and entertaining graphic.

Wright has a fine arts degree from Iowa State University and worked in corporate marketing for two decades. He illustrated and painted in his spare time. Nine years ago, he began full-time as a freelance graphic illustrator.

One day, a prospective client asked if he had done graphic recording for a conference meeting.

“I’d seen it done before, but I never did it myself,” he admits.

The event went smoothly, and word got out among event planners about his skill and expertise, which helps engage employees.

Another aspect of his artwork is illustrating kids’ books. Author Betsey Young’s son,

Sage Young, went through cancer treatments. Betsey wrote two children’s books about families facing a cancer diagnosis. Wright’s job was to draw kid-friendly images interacting with cancer doctors.

Additionally, he illustrates comics, created a Wyatt Earp mural and sells various prints of his work. He applied for a Des Moines Ballet Artist in Residence program. He observed and sketched ballet dancers, celebrating the movement and poses in a 10-page comic book.

“One dancer experienced a dream sequence where she wakes up and questions if it was really a dream,” he says.

Wright currently works from his studio at Mainframe Studios. It is his goal to fill in between corporate gigs with painting, his first love.

“It’s fun to get back into the physical medium,” he reflects.

Yet, he likes to create multiple levels of art. He has followed a career path that has been “winding and not in a straight line.”

“I love creating for clients and bringing them something unexpected,” he says.

For more info on his artwork, visit Mainframe Studios No. 321 or visit his website at www.nathantwright.com. ■

‘Honest and simple’ blues

Brandon Hudspeth, along with Jaisson Taylor, are a duo that will perform at Central Iowa Blues Society’s Winter Blues Festival.

As a child, Brandon Hudspeth was intrigued with Big Bird and other characters from “Sesame Street.” When the show featured various guest stars, Hudspeth took note of a man dressed in black, playing guitar and singing.

The famed musician, Johnny Cash, commanded more attention than Kermit the Frog, and Hudspeth begged his parents for a guitar. He began taking lessons when he was just 5 years old.

Fast forward to today, and Hudspeth is an accomplished, award-winning blues musician playing in two bands and a duo. Hudspeth and Jaisson Taylor, in the duo Hudspeth and Taylor, received nominations for the Blues Music Award, Blue Blast Award and an Independent Blues Award.

The duo is one of the featured performers at Central Iowa Blues Society’s Winter Blues Festival on Feb. 14.

Hudspeth has performed several times at the Winter Fest in different bands. His band, Levee Town, was formed in 2002 in Kansas City. Levee Town represented the Kansas City Blues Society in the International Blues Competition twice, placing in the top 10 in Memphis in 2009.

Levee Town has also released nine albums. “Trying to Keep My Head Above Water” was nominated for a Blues Blast Award for best blues rock album.

Growing up in Oklahoma, his dad was big fan of B.B. King.

“I remember my dad waking me up when Johnny Carson was on and B.B. King was on the show. B.B. King was a big influence in my music career,” he reflects.

He began playing in band gigs at age 16 and taught guitar lessons to his friends from school. He moved to Kansas City after high school, attended music school and has performed ever since.

With a background in jazz and classical music, he teaches guitar and music lessons, which helps during the slow times when not touring. He played on the Rhythm and Blues Cruise and has opened for Buddy Guy, Kenny Wayne Shepherd,

Brandon Hudspeth and Jaisson Taylor

Leon Russell, George Thorogood and others.

Hudspeth loves the “honesty and simpleness” when playing the blues genre.

“You have to put your heart and soul into making it work. If you don’t put your gut and sweat into it, it won’t work,” Hudspeth reflects. “It’s paying respect to where the music came from, along with the emotion and honesty of it.”

Hudspeth is happy to return to the Winter Blues Fest, where in last year’s performance, his duo recorded a live album at the festival.

“If you came last year, you might hear yourself cheering in the background of the album,” he laughs.

Winter Blues Fest

The Central Iowa Blues Society has hosted the Winter Blues Fest for 31 years. Hundreds of musicians have performed the two-day festival, and 20 acts are featured for this year’s festival.

Scott Allen, CIBS president, says the festival promotes live blues music. Typically they feature different regional musicians each year, and most are new every year.

“If I filled it with local bands who typically play for free, then not many folks would attend,” he explains.

Yet, they want to showcase Iowa blues musicians. Heath Allen puts together a Blues Expo, a collaboration of local musicians for one of the concerts. Bob Pace assembles a Blues Hall of Fame Showcase, featuring Iowa Blues Hall of Fame musicians.

Additionally, the CIBS hosts a yearly Blues Challenge, where the winners, Weary Ramblers and Other Brothers, represented Iowa at the International Blues Challenge in Memphis. The Weary Ramblers recently won the 2026 International Blues Challenge on Jan. 17. for best solo/duo act out of 130 other acts. The Central-Iowa Weary Ramblers consists of Kathryn Severing Fox and Chad Elliott. Elliott also won first place in the solo/duo guitar. The Other Brothers made it to the semi-finals.

Allen encourages music lovers to attend the fest, as the lineup is diverse blues, such as jazz blues, rock blues, gospel and more.

“There’s something for everyone. The blues genre is like a big family and a friend you haven’t met yet,” he says. “Iowa has good musicians, just as anywhere in the world.” ■

4-legged friends

Ashlee Crawford appreciates dogs and horses.

Ashlee Crawford's two passions are her four-legged friends.

Her dog, Layla, is a 4-year-old black labrador. She rescued her from a breeder who got out of the breeding business.

"When I saw her, she was the only female. I liked her personality," she recalls.

Crawford's love of the labrador breed began as a child when her family pets were labs. She says her 80-pound black dog can be intimidating for strangers in public.

"I can see some people get nervous when they see my dog," she says. "Most labs just want to run up and love on you. They are either lab people, or they are not."

The best thing she likes about Layla is her loyalty.

"Labs are high energy. I like their dedication and playing outside. They are committed to people and are always ready to rally," she explains.

Layla also shares in Crawford's other passion of riding and showing horses. When she was in high school, her great uncle gifted her a horse. She took riding lessons and attended college for equine science.

A friend of hers was a horse trainer, and, after college, she started showing horses along with her friend. She shows horses in the category of American Paint Horse and Pinto Horse competitions. These unique horses are bred for color.

Part of the competition is to make sure the horse is groomed properly to ensure the coat is pearly, if it is a white color. She may shave the hair for a cleaner look. Horses are bathed, and the mane is fashioned in a ponytail.

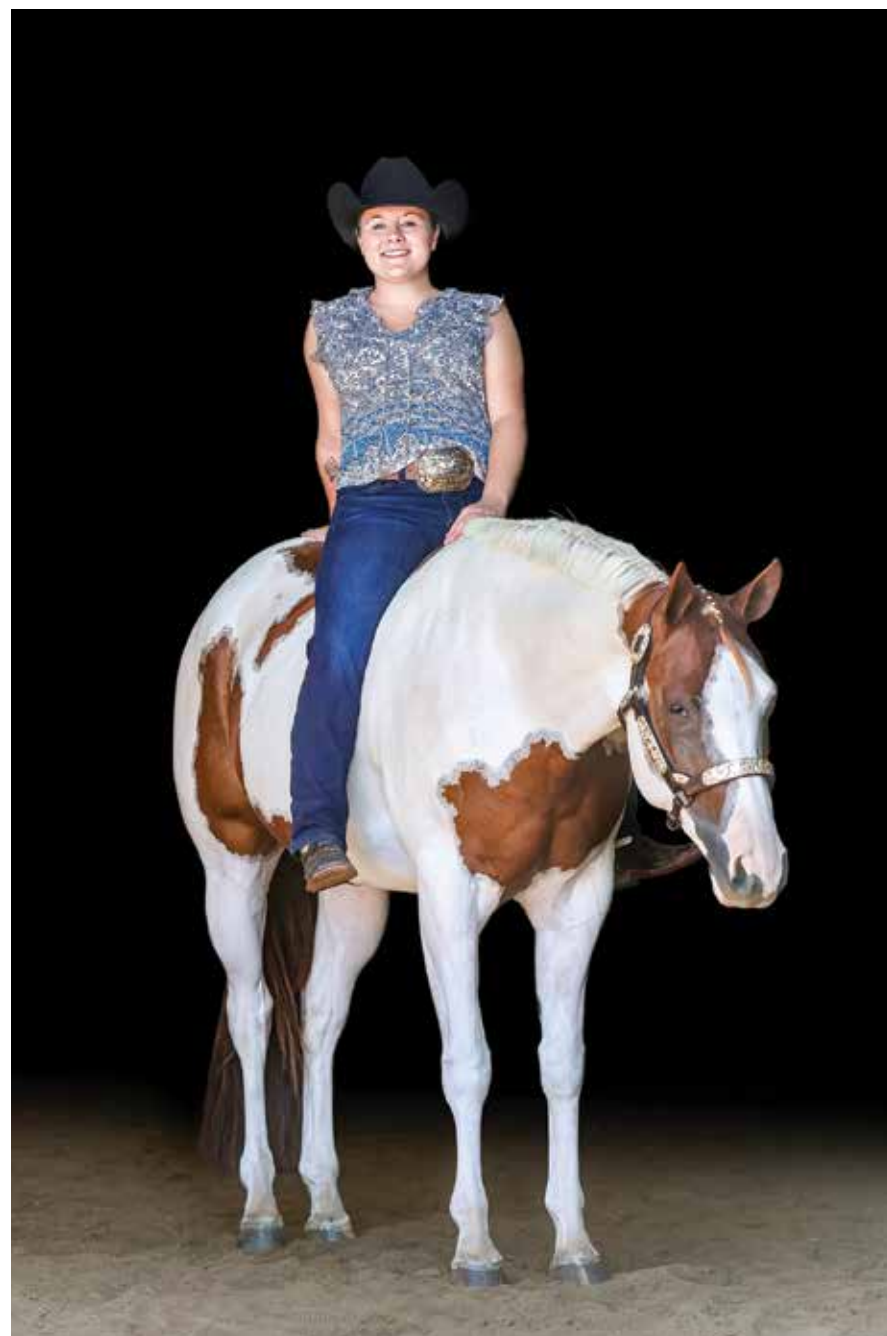

"There's a lot of bathing and brushing," she explains. "We really pay attention to detail."

Crawford found success as she won the Amateur Cash for Color Walk Trot Futurity Championship in 2024 and an Iowa Pinto Championship for Trail. The category examines a horse's structure and movement. She says working with the show horses is her passion.

"It's a real cool experience, especially when winning. It's a fun community to be around. The hobby is expensive," she admits. "There's a lot of sportsmanship for the individual."

Layla, taken by Lens and Leash Photography.

Ashlee Crawford

As Crawford is attending nursing school, she recently sold her horse. She still rides horses and helps with her friend's horse in her spare time.

"After nursing school, I hope to get back to it."

Meanwhile, Layla is her constant companion and forever friend.

"There's a sense of responsibility having a dog. Having that connection with Layla is important. We do everything together. I don't have kids, so it's like my kid. It's not just a dog," she reflects. "It's like a bestie to hang out with." ■

The conundrum of kindness

Grant Number 5

“BE KIND!”

OK, OK, I heard you the first time. And I do want to be kind, but I’m in a rush and I don’t want to be taken advantage of and shouldn’t I first be kind to myself? All arguments I have made over the years to justify NOT being kind.

But don’t we all in our hearts want to be kind — or are we “Bad to the Bone,” as sung by George Thorogood and the Destroyers?

Rutger Bregman wrote a book in 2019, “Humankind,” where he claims the science is as clear as clear can be — people default not to evil, but to kindness. He claims that when the Titanic is sinking, unlike in the movie, it is kindness that rules. When the Twin Towers are burning, it is kindness that is present in those stairways. When London is being bombed in World War II, it is kindness that motivates the population.

What? Is Bregman saying we lean toward goodness?

“I was born in 1925 on a farm south of Sioux City.”

Whip thin. Large smile. Crinkly eyes. Her name is Mary Drossel.

One hundred years old. It’s hard to believe her age as she greets me with a warm openness and curious gaze. She is so not jaded by life and gives off a feeling of apple pie and just-whipped cream.

Mary Drossel is a teacher. She started when she was 18 years old. She attended country school as a child, earned her teaching degree from Cedar Falls, and then she was hired to teach at another country school in her home township.

“I had 19 students. They ranged from kindergarten to eighth grade. The oldest student was 17. I was 18.”

And then what?

“I taught two years country school, and then I did public school in town. Then I was home for 12 years raising my kids. You see, I married a farmer who came home from the Second World War.”

And then what happened after your kids were older?

“I went back to teaching. When I turned 44, I had a new baby. I kept teaching anyway. I taught a total of 35 years. I quit teaching in 1990. My husband died in 1993.”

Mary now resides at a retirement community in Johnston. While wandering the halls recently, she ran across a professional photographer, Tim Abramowitz. His mom and dad had also been part of that retirement community, but both died a few years ago. Tim remained connected to the facility and was hanging his photographs of rural Iowa in a hall there in preparation for a presentation.

“Tim was hanging those pictures. My country school wasn’t up there. But there was other country schools. So, I asked Tim if he thought the country school I taught at was still standing.”

Tim is straight-backed and sober. Although his family came from Illinois, where his mom and dad were school teachers, he has the no-nonsense look of an old Iowa farmer who drinks black coffee at the cafe counter in his feed cap. Tim quietly gets things done.

“I asked Mary where her school house was located. She mentioned she was in Grant Township in Woodbury County — Grant Number 5,” Tim said.

Was that helpful?

“Every township in Iowa had nine schools. At one time, over 14,000 one-room school houses in the State of Iowa because they built schoolhouses every two miles so that no student would have to walk more than one mile to school. And so I realized that I had photographed Grant Number 4 in Woodbury County, which was just two miles down the road from Grant Number 5. And so I figured, well, I’ll be able to find it.”

OK.

So Tim and his friend and fellow photographer, Bill Roach, packed up the car and travelled three and a half hours to a remote field where they found Grant Number 5. And took pictures.

“I didn’t tell Mary I was going to do this. So, at the presentation the other day, I presented her with the photograph.”

Wow!

“I could hardly keep the tears away,” Mary said.

“Nor could I,” Tim said.

OK, Tim drove seven hours, took this beautiful photo, gifted it to a stranger, and told no one (I found out from Tim’s friend, Bill). Mary was touched to the core by Tim’s kindness.

So... do I really NOT have time to be kind?

And, as Mary says, “There’s a time for all of us to die. It’s marked. We don’t know, and we should not know.”

So, BE KIND — before the buzzer goes off ending the game. Trust me, you want to anyway. ■

DES MOINES FORGOTTEN

BY KRISTIAN DAY

Haunting the house

“Does your life change knowing they exist?”

Several times a year, I make the trek on Interstate 80 across the state of Iowa to the Quad Cities to visit family. My nieces and nephew are getting older. My sister and I have finally cultivated a relationship in our adult life. My dad is nearly 70, and, at some point, I know this list of people is going to get smaller. As the years go by, I am growing eager to hang on to the things that are fading away.

I spent my high school years in the small town of Ely, just outside of Cedar Rapids. My mom and I were the first occupants of that house, and it was a fine place to spend my teenage years, but it wasn't the house I grew up in.

Whenever I would leave my dad's place in Moline, Illinois, I would drive over to the town of Rock Island. The place that I called “my house” was located on 32nd Street and 18th Avenue. My first memory is in this house. All those early developmental achievements happened there. So many birthdays, celebrations and deaths that I first experienced happened during the first 14 years of my life. I haven't lived in that house for 26 years, but I still feel more attached to that place than I ever did in Ely or even my house in Des Moines now. I had taken it to be a constant in my life, unseen but always there. It was as much a part of me as I was a part of it. I have felt its absence since the day we moved out. Over the years, I have watched that house fall apart. I would drive by, and the unkept yard, gutters falling off and the garage looking completely unusable. It did not look like that when we lived there. Each year, I have watched it die a little more, yet I can't seem to stop haunting my own house.

A few years ago, my dad and I were talking about the house he grew up in here in Des Moines. It was not the place he spent the largest part of his life, but it was where his memories began. We have (or maybe had) family members here in Des Moines who were here decades before I showed up.

Dad's early years were spent on East 38th Street. The house was originally owned by his grandmother, and his Uncle Dennis eventually built an addition on top of it years after his family moved out. It sat up on a hill, and in the front yard there was an old fashioned swing set made from galvanized pipe that had survived every storm since the late 1950s when it was built. Down the hill, Dad told me he and his uncle would play in Fourmile Creek. My grandfather, Homer Day, worked for the Rock Island Lines railroad company, but his siblings, including Dennis, were all teachers.

I don't know the exact timelines, but before Dennis took over the house, my grandmother, Anne Day, was staying at home, but money wasn't great. As the story goes, they made enough to feed the kids, but that was about it. Homer was transferred briefly to Trenton, Missouri, before eventually moving the family to Rock Island, Illinois.

This part of our family history is hazy, and, personally, I feel disconnected to it. In fact, my grandfather had a marriage prior to the one with my grandmother, but we haven't had any contact with them. My dad has half-brothers and half-sisters he doesn't know. I have cousins I have never met. Ten years ago, my sister and I went through the whole 23andMe genetic testing (making it difficult for me to ever commit a crime in this lifetime). We found all sorts of relatives from that first bloodline. The one that was the most impactful was a cousin who we both thought looked similar to me. She would be the same age as me and lives in Indiana now.

When I moved to Des Moines in 2007, I didn't know any of this. My dad would just say he lived here briefly, but that was the end of it. When we went looking for the old house, it made it feel real for me, but Dad seemed disconnected. All these Des Moines blood relatives I have never met, and my dad poses a blunt question, "Who cares? Does your life change knowing they exist?" No, it doesn't, but, in the last couple years, I have found myself over in that neighborhood more as my new favorite Mexican joint, Café con Leche, sits in the Hilltop Neighborhood. I drive by that street where my family tree started.

Am I haunting the house... or is it haunting me? ■

Connecting families

Jennifer Baldon volunteers with Jack's Basket to deliver an important message to those who will be raising a child with Down syndrome.

The stigma over those born and living with Down syndrome has lightened over the years, but it has not been an easy journey. The positive actions of Jennifer Baldon are helping parents in the area educate themselves about their children, while also celebrating them. She does this with the help of Jack's Basket.

Families deliver a basket that includes pamphlets with information on what the child has been diagnosed with, blankets, toys and other resources, from a member of a family that has experienced something similar.

"When I had my twins, my boy twin had Down syndrome, and, at that point, we'd known for a while that he probably would, but we didn't know for sure. We had absolutely no resources in front of us," Baldon said.

She was then connected with someone from Jack's Basket.

"We got to meet, and she sat down and talked with us about concerns, what a little bit of her experience has been, and it was just comforting knowing that there was somebody else out there who knew what we were going through. Just for the fact that we hadn't been provided any resources up to that moment, I wanted to be able to share that with other people," Baldon said.

Baldon says it is rare to have a set of identical twins with one of them having Down syndrome, but even rarer to have both twins be born with Down syndrome.

Inspired by what happened with her after the birth of her twins, Baldon decided to get involved with Jack's Basket.

"When a new mother or family is either referred to or signed up to receive a basket, the organization will match them with someone who may have similar birth diagnoses or someone who might just be in the area. As of right now, I'm the only person in central Iowa that delivers baskets," Baldon said.

Jack's Basket connects Baldon with families in the area who have children with a similar diagnosis to her son.

"When I am matched with someone, I will contact them. We will set up the time to deliver a basket and sit down and have a conversation and talk about their concerns or resources that they can go to," Baldon said. "There's a lot of local moms' groups that I wouldn't have known about. There's Gigi Playhouse. There's just a lot more out there that may not be readily available unless you're connected to part of the community."

The story of Jack's Basket comes from a mother who had just given birth via c-section. The nurse told her, "Are you aware of Trisomy 21? Your baby is showing signs of Down syndrome," followed by "Well, just enjoy your baby," before leaving the room. Baldon had a similar experience.

"They're good at what they do (doctors and nurses), but they're not great at delivering that information. I did not have a very kind comment made to me when we were told that it was likely my son was going to have Down syndrome. I was 21 weeks along, and we were told that it was 'too late to do anything.' Not that that was ever the plan, but it was a shock that was said to me, and I have come across some people who have had worse comments," Baldon said.

The main thing Baldon has encountered is that families simply do not know what to expect when raising a child with Down syndrome.

"I've met with expecting families who are familiar with Down syndrome but don't necessarily know what to expect, what to ask, especially when they just first had their baby," Baldon said. "It's nice to be able to connect the people to the communities, because I don't think at the early stages, most of us are connected as well as we could."

Helping battle some of the stigma around those with Down syndrome is another front that Baldon is on.

"I think a lot of people think that having a child with a disability is a burden; it is a lot of work, but it is definitely not that. As much as people say that children with Down syndrome are always happy, there are lots of moments that they're not, but they're a joy. They see the world a little bit differently, and it's a lot of love and learning, a lot of acceptance, and there's learning a lot of grace with other people. And it's not the end. It is absolutely the beginning of everything," Baldon said.

Overall, Baldon just wants to spread the word that there are helpful and caring people out there. While she did ultimately receive warm words from a geneticist at Mayo Clinic after her child's birth, and further information about Jack's Basket, she wants to make sure other expecting parents do not get the same initial comments that she did.

"I just think that the main reason I wanted to be involved is because it was a very emotional time. And, for most women, just having a baby is an emotional time, and then there's that heightened sense of, you're scared, you don't know what to expect, maybe you haven't been received with the best community to accept your baby. It's very important to me to have somebody be like, this is going to be OK, and there are people here who care," Baldon said. ■

Affordable luxury

BMW X3 30 offers high tech, quiet and comfort.

BY JACKIE WILSON

As SUV sales soar among seemingly all car manufacturing brands, inching in the market with an affordable version is essential. When it comes to BMW, can those two words — affordable and BMW — be used in the same sentence?

BMW believes “The Ultimate Driving Machine” can with its compact SUV, the BMW X3 xDrive 30. BMW offers seven SUVs from one to seven; with the ‘X’ representing SUV. The subcompact starts at $44,000 and the price goes up to more than $159,000 for the high-performance models.

The X3 30 base is $50,900 with the 2026 model driven at $60,325. What makes it special, besides the ability to say you drive a “beamer”?

Lots. With more than 100 years in the car business, BMW pays attention to details and is often at the forefront of tech and comfort.

First, pair your phone to personalize your drive. Adjust mirrors, seats and heads-up display on your phone app and, once you connect, it's ready to go. It overrides any previous driver preferences instantly. When renting a BMW, take the personalized info into the new ride.

Infotainment displays can be confusing. When navigating to the home screen, it takes numerous annoying “back” buttons to get where you want. Yet, what three things do drivers use most? Phone, music or media and navigation. To make it easy, BMW placed these three buttons on the center console. Just press Media, Tel or Nav, and you are there instantly.

Don't want to press a button? Just say “Hey BMW.” This simple command can accomplish practically anything. I turned up the temperature to 69 degrees, navigated to the dealership and changed the ambient lighting to pink. The “Hey BMW” keeps your hands and eyes on the road. Trouble is, I got my bots mixed up, and I kept calling out Siri and Alexa.

The sink-in, buttery-soft seats have an extender on both the driver and passenger seats, adding extra inches for taller folks. Back-seat passengers experience comfort with ample leg room and climate controls. The steering wheel circumference is thick with a sportier, racecar feel designed to reduce fatigue. However, with my small hands, that half inch seemed significant.

The BMW is a smooth ride. With its adaptive suspension and weight distribution, you can barely feel the potholes and road bumps. It is one of the quietest drives I have experienced in the years I have written this column. BMW uses various insulators and thicker glass. It makes for a calming drive without any humming or wind blowing. In some vehicles, I double-check the window because it sounds like I have a window open. Not the BMW.

BMW's iconic dual front grille, known as a “kidney grille,” has been standard since 1933. The sensors opens and close to either release the heating and cooling.

A “mild hybrid” system includes a 48-volt hybrid. This fairly new technology allows the engine to run more smoothly by exploiting the energy recovered during braking. It generates additional power for electrical devices and offers 27 mpg city/33 mpg highway.

For decades, BMWs has consistently make the “best luxury” list. With high resale value and comfort, affordable luxury is now also possible with a BMW. ■

A basement full of paintings

Marvin Freund has spent his life following his passion.

When some people have a passion, it is something they can never get away from. And, quite often, it is something they have no desire to run away from. They run toward it, because, for them, it is comfortable. Marvin Freund's passion for painting has survived several decades. Now in his retirement, he spends almost every day painting in his studio, doing what he loves most.

He did not always have this ability to paint as he pleased. Freund attended Iowa Central Community College to become an art instructor. He started working for a local sign company to continue saving money for his education, but before he could go back to school, he was drafted into the army.

"I got a draft notice, that was 1962, to come on down and talk to the Selective Service Board. I went down there. She said, 'Are you in college?' And I said, 'I'm trying to save for college.' And she said, 'Well, you don't have to worry about saving. You'll be going next month to the army.'" Freund said.

He then went to Missouri for basic training, Virginia for schooling, and then spent the next year and a half in Korea. Once he returned, he started working at the sign company again.

That job kept him close to painting. He was taught how to paint billboards, highway signs and trucks. Before the sign company, in high school, Freund's artwork started off a little "wackier" than the ones that now cover his entire basement and several of his friends and family members homes.

"Just giving an example, a plane falling out of the sky and a pilot leaning out and blood coming out of his mouth. This instructor said, 'Marvin, have you seen that?' I said, 'No, but I got a good idea.' He said, 'Paint things that you've seen,'" Freund said.

Now, every afternoon, Freund paints what he sees. And he paints those sights well. He does not hang on to all of his paintings, though.

"I've given them away. I've had shows. I've sold some. But, I just paint for the heck of it. If you want one, you can have one," Freund said.

Freund describes his style as realism. His paintings cover a wide range of subjects. Baseballs. People. Flowers. His favorite? Boats. If he sees something he would like to paint, especially while on vacation with his wife, he snaps a picture and brings it home. What's his process like?

"The first thing I think about is, do I have the right color paint? Because I have to go out and get some if I don't. And, I've started some paintings that I blacked out because I didn't like them. So, it's got to be coming together. Otherwise, I just paint them white and start all over," Freund said.

His collection of brushes could merit its own story. They set beside him at his workbench, where he was currently working on a painting of a sunset over the water. His talent for realistic paintings doesn't keep him away from creating the strange, cartoon-like sketches and drawings he started out with. Some of them were also on the board beside his current project.

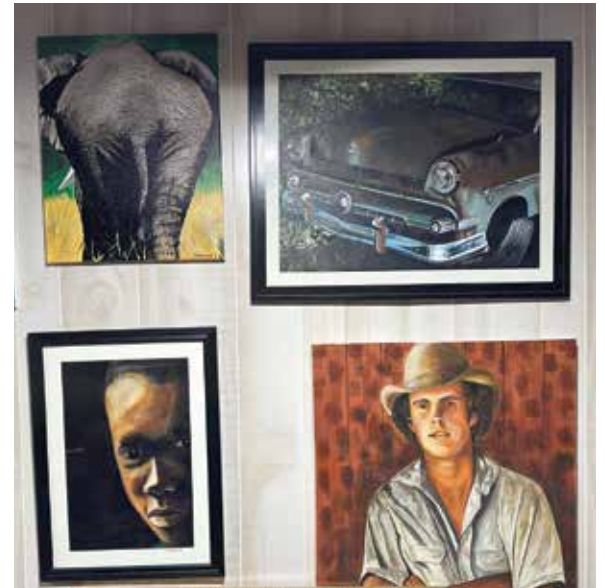

"I like to do cartoons, but I get carried away. As you can tell, it's sort of wild, isn't it? I've done a lot of them and ripped them up and thrown them away. They're fun, though, aren't they? I like to dabble in different faces," Freund said.

Most of all, for Freund, the practice is a great escape.

"I relax down here, and nobody bugs me. It's just me and throwing on some paint," Freund said.

He has done some paintings for friends. They bring him a reference photo, and Freund works his magic. He puts the brush to the surface and makes it happen.

One would think that, even with his skill, these paintings would be a challenge.

"You know, it's not really hard for me. It's sort of easy. Matter of fact, I have people sending me pictures of animals to paint, and I paint them. I don't know how many dogs or cats I painted. They're easy. I have no problem with them once I get started," Freund said.

That ease likely comes from years of practice. Freund has participated in several art shows over the years. He is not sure exactly where all of his paintings will go, but his wife has a plan.

"My wife would like to see me get rid of them," Freund said with a chuckle. "I'm getting old. She's going to give them away at our funeral. So, who knows?" ■

Big game, big party

COMPILED FROM THE IOWA LIVING MAGAZINES

It's time for the big game, and that's the perfect reason to gather with your fellow fans around the big screen to see which team finishes the year with a championship ring. And, you won't be alone. Record-breaking viewership has been reported the last two years, with 127.7 million U.S. viewers last year, according to ESPN.

Tonya Strawn
Friends, food and fondue

Tonya Strawn and her family members decided to start their Super Bowl “All Fat Sunday” event way back in 1997. It started simple with two boys just wanting to do something different and a love for hot wings. Now, more than 30 people usually attend.

“This consists of dozens of deep-fried appetizers and a fondue pot for tempura and beer batter items, even including desserts,” Tonya says. “Over the years, we have taught many how to fondue without ‘fondon’t.’ The air frier has recently appeared, so we can pretend to be healthy.”

One of her favorite homemade items was an egg roll filled with chopped up sautéed mushrooms, Boursin and cream cheese, like a take on a stuffed mushroom. They also usually do a themed appetizer, like a homemade stuffed egg roll, while paying homage to the teams that are playing. An example would be barbecue smoked pulled chicken when Kansas City played.

“My favorite memories from the years could be placing a TV in the bathroom to not miss any commercials. Once our oldest friend was the only one who made it through a snowstorm to continue the tradition. My house smells of peanut oil for about a week, but it’s so worth it.”

Party planning tips

Brooke Mickelson recently hosted 50 people for a Christmas party. The next week, more than a dozen friends gathered for another holiday party at her family’s home.

When it comes to hosting and entertaining people, she is the go-to person to welcome guests into her home, no matter what the occasion is.

When asked for Super Bowl party ideas, Mickelson sprang into action to offer her best. She even set up a mock Super Bowl party table, complete with a variety of food.

For the Super Bowl theme, she found a stadium-shaped bundt cake pan. She arranged waffle cups with individual syrup “shooters.” Pizza is always a winner, along with seasonal fruit, nuts and other grab-and-go appetizers. Fresh flowers and candles make for festive décor. After photos of the spread, her son and his friends eagerly ate the props.

Mickelson obtains ideas from online sources. She takes advantage of her creativity to make a unique experience for others.

“I do it because I love it. People should know they are welcome here. I want them to help themselves to the fridge if they need something. It’s their place when they are here,” she says.

Miles Waage
Super Bowl Kids Reporter

The majority of football fans are content to watch the Super Bowl game on television. Tickets are limited — and expensive — so it is rare to attend the Super Bowl game in person.

Yet Miles Waage, 14, of Waukee was one of those fortunate fans. He not only attended, but appeared on television, interviewing the biggest athletes of the game.

The Super Bowl LVII in 2023 was a memorable event for the Waukee student. He and about 68,000 fans attended the game, watching the Kansas City Chiefs take on the Philadelphia Eagles.

Miles, who was 11 years old at the time, was awarded the Panini America Kids Super Bowl Reporter. He collected Panini football cards over the years. Panini holds a contest every year for the Kids Super Bowl Reporter. Kids from all over the nation enter the contest by entering a code from the trading cards and creating a video.

“I played basketball with Kirk Cousins and threw the football around with Garrett Wilson,” he says.

One of his favorite players he interviewed was Patrick Mahomes, quarterback for the Chiefs.

He received merchandise and several signed cards for his football card collection. He and his dad had great seats at the game. His friends thought it was a cool experience.

Eagles and Broncos fans
Football, family and friendly rivalries

The long-standing rule says that one should never talk politics or religion in polite company. When it comes to football, however, all bets are off. It is not uncommon to have a group of people gathered who have vastly different opinions on which team is the best.

Such was the case one Saturday afternoon when a group of friends gathered at their favorite local dive bar. Margaret DeSio claims the Chicago Bears. Bryce Carlton and her husband, Zach, are the classic house divided: one went to Iowa, the other to Iowa State. Barb and Mark Pessolano are die-hard Eagles fans. They even have matching his and hers pickleball paddles proudly sporting the Eagles logo. Kathy Hanika is much more agnostic.

“I just root for the teams with the cute quarterbacks,” she says with a grin.

Mark and Barb have hosted several Super Bowl parties for their large extended family. They have had as many as 26 family members crowding their house. They serve wings, beef balls, sandwiches, hot roast beef and, of course, Philly cheesesteaks. Their oldest daughter handles the desserts.
